Check up on your New Suitings

CHECKS, which came in with a rush at the beginning of the season, show every sign of carrying us right through the summer and beyond.

Beach dresses in particular are made more trim and tailored by the clever use of formal checks. Afternoon frocks are made presentable for country and town in the same rather cunning way.

MAIN theme is, I suppose, economy. Because there's no doubt about it that checks are much more economical than rather light posies, garlands, or all the other whimsicalities we like to indulge in. These are the things we have to "live up to," while checks, whether in gingham or washing silk, can be worn and washed to the last thread and still look smart. Not only that, but they don't require our best coiffure, or our most startling make-up.

Take a look at the photograph on the right. Believe it or not, but that is a beach suit. The smart combination of checks and plain fabric, the neat lines of the bolero jacket cleverly disguise it. Dress is in plain wool linen with an invisible zipper back and front. Jacket is in bottle green wool linen lined with the cowboy hat. Jaeger make this outfit.

SERIOUS accessories to link with town or country suitings are also introducing the check motif into their make-up. Somewhere—either into the backs of gloves—like the ones below—or on handbags, which are sometimes made completely of check tweed or linen, and certainly into the ever-useful scarf.

BELOW—Checks and spots are both in favour for town gloves this season. Gloves on the left are in white fabric with navy spots; those on the right are in bright red leather trimmed with a square design in dark leather.

ABOVE—Gap check linen makes this smart beach frock, worn with a plain bolero jacket in a shade to match. This has revers and lining in the same check as the dress and cowboy hat.

The Perfect Omelette

THE making of a successful omelette is one of the most difficult things in the whole repertoire of cooking—and yet so simple. It is almost a "sleight of hand," and some people can do it and others—even highly skilled in other respects—simply cannot. The rules are simple enough—but the actual making is another matter.

The choice of the pan is important. It should be thick, as an omelette cooks too quickly in a thin frying-pan. It should be sufficiently large, so that the omelette mixture is spread out thinly. A heavy, lumpy butter in the pan and when very hot, omelette is often the result of too small a pan.

An omelette pan should, strictly speaking, never be used for anything else. It should never be washed, but rubbed over with a clean, dry cloth in this way, the pan is kept slightly oiled, and perfectly smooth. The slightest bit of rough surface in a pan may spoil the omelette.

It is preferable not to make an omelette with too many eggs, as it is difficult to mix a quantity of eggs quickly enough.

Break the number of eggs required in a basin. Mix with a fork till the yolks and whites are well blended, but avoid beating them to a froth. Never break the eggs till they are thoroughly mixed. To every three large, so that the omelette mixture is spread out thinly. A heavy, lumpy butter in the pan and when very hot, omelette is often the result of too small a pan.

pepper. Hold the handle of the pan with the left hand, and a fork in the right. Stir the eggs as quickly as possible, using a circular movement.

AFTER a few seconds, shake the pan continuously, so that the eggs will not stick to it. Then stop stirring for two or three seconds, so that the mixture may get slightly brown, fold the omelette quickly with a fork while still in the pan and serve at once on a hot dish or plate.

An omelette made with four eggs should not be cooked for more than exactly two minutes. A good omelette should have the consistency of scrambled eggs inside and the outside should be just sufficiently set to allow for folding.

Here are some variations on the omelette theme.

FRY or grill some kippers, bone them carefully, and chop. Mix with the omelette mixture in the basin and make the omelette as in preceding recipe.

Fry a few sausages and chop finely two or three of them. Mix with the omelette mixture in the usual way. Just before folding, add the remaining sausages, cut into two or three pieces.

Peel and core two or three dessert apples. Chop them and cook till tender in a little water and sugar. Drain and mix with the omelette.

mixture. Make the omelette, fold, and sprinkle with a little sugar.

Make the omelette in the ordinary way, adding one tablespoonful of sugar to the mixture. Fold and cover with a hot chocolate sauce—made by dissolving 3oz. of plain chocolate with three tablespoonfuls of water. Stir over a slow fire till quite smooth and very thick.

French Meringues

INGREDIENTS: 2 cups crystal sugar, 1 cup water, 5 egg whites, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla essence, 1/2 teaspoon lemon essence.

METHOD: Heat sugar and water in saucepan slowly till dissolved, then boil without stirring till syrup forms a firm ball when tested in cold water. Whisk the egg whites to stiff froth, very gradually add the hot syrup, whisking egg whites constantly. Place pan in basin of ice-water, add flavouring essence and beat for five minutes, then cover with cloth and leave for 15 minutes. Oil and sprinkle a baking tray with corn-flour, shape meringue with a dessertspoon or forcing bag with tube, and bake slowly for about 40 minutes till firm and dry.

REST for BEAUTY

REST is the best of all beauty aids, yet it is often neglected, probably because it is such simple treatment and costs nothing.

The woman who lives at continual high pressure all through the day, whether occupied with her work or with social gaieties, will soon pay the penalty in early wrinkles, prematurely grey hair, and a tired, haggard appearance.

In addition to eight hours sound sleep at night, every woman past her first youth should try to arrange for an hour's complete rest during the day. The hour after lunch is the ideal time, but if this cannot be managed, the hour preceding the evening meal is almost as good.

As a general rule, the housewife will find the former time more convenient to fit in with her daily routine, the business woman, the latter. Anyone who has been working in a shop or office all day should make a point of lying down for an hour regularly each evening, as soon as she comes in from work. Her health, her looks, and her capacity for work would improve wonderfully.

Relaxation in a Quiet Room

This rest, to be completely efficacious, should be taken alone in a quiet bedroom. To be back in an armchair is not so beneficial at this time.

Take off your frock, and also any constraining wearing apparel, darken the room, and then lie flat on the bed with the head comfortably pillowed, and every muscle of the body relaxed. Close your eyes, and make your mind a blank as far as you possibly can, or at any rate think only of pleasant things.

To lie down and worry over the day's happenings is worse than useless, you will probably get up more tired and brain fagged than before. You can enjoy lying quietly in this pleasant state of total relaxation, both mentally and physically, at the end of the hour.

Good restful sleep at night is most important. Insomnia is a common complaint in these days of hurry and worry, but nothing ages a woman more rapidly. Pale lined faces, tired dull looking eyes, and a strained, anxious expression, are the inevitable consequences, apart from such disastrous consequences as irritability, unbalanced nerves, continual headaches, and general lassitude.

Early to Bed

Every woman should try to be in bed by eleven at the latest. One hour's sleep before midnight is worth two after, and is one of the best of all beauty aids.

The slightest tendency to insomnia should be warded off at once before it has time to develop into a habit. A heavy meal late at night is a frequent cause of sleeplessness, so is an ill-ventilated room, an uncomfortable bed, or being too hot or too cold, but the most important thing of all is to compose the mind.

Countless women sleep badly because they take their domestic or business worries to bed with them, and these always appear far worse during the dark hours of the night than they actually are.

Some people find that a glass of hot milk, sipped slowly, or a warm but not hot bath just before getting into bed, will help them to sleep. If, after lying awake for some time, sleep does not come, an excellent plan is to pace the room for a few minutes. Getting back into a warm bed when just slightly chilled has a wonderfully soporific effect.

Sleeping drugs, above all things, should be avoided, so if the simple remedies already mentioned are of no avail, a doctor should be consulted.

A Trained Nurse

QUICK RECOVERY AFTER ILLNESS

Very often a period of convalescence is much more critical than the actual illness that preceded it. Your whole body is left in a state of complete exhaustion. You have no strength to combat any renewed attacks.

Doctors and nurses realize the importance of a speedy recovery after illness. In Horlicks they have found a highly nourishing food that can be easily digested when all other foods cause nausea.

Horlicks rebuilds your exhausted body. Convalescence is shortened. You feel full of vigour and vitality. Always keep Horlicks ready at hand.

In these difficult times of anxiety and worry, the task of carrying on and doing work which must be done is a doubly difficult one which must tend to exhaust one's nervous energy.

Horlicks builds up strength, vitality and prevents that listlessness and tiredness caused by constant nervous strain. H. J. M. Horlicks, Kynmally Building, Queen's Road, Hongkong.

900-Year-Old Church

Closed Because Wealthy Woman Insisted On A Bigger One

Timid Rector And Obstinate Patron

A STATELY church, once loved and beautified by villagers who came to worship from miles around, has stood derelict at Treyford, Sussex, for nearly ninety years because of the misplaced generosity of a wealthy woman.

The church is St. Mary of Treyford. Part of it was built in the eleventh century on a mound that has been sacred since the time of the Christian missionaries. To-day it is a ruin, lost in a tangle of undergrowth and overhanging trees, forgotten by the ecclesiastical authorities.

In the forties of last century there lived at Treyford the all-powerful and self-willed Mrs. Vernon Harcourt. She owned the largest estates in the neighbourhood and was patroness of the local churches.

One day the rector of Elsted, who included Treyford and Didding in his benefice, timidly approached Mrs. Harcourt to inform her that the churches of Elsted and Treyford needed restoring.

"I won't do that," decided Mrs. Harcourt. "We shall have another church, a much bigger one, with the highest steeple we can build. We shall erect it between the two other churches."

"But, madam," pleaded the rector, "it will mean that the parishioners will have to walk miles to come to church."

"If they really want to worship, they will come," was her reply.

And so in 1849 the church of St. Mary of Treyford was locked for good, and a little later the church at Elsted was locked too.

The large new Treyford church, with its steeple overtopping all buildings for miles was opened.

Later, when Mrs. Harcourt moved south to Selsey, her obstinacy again made itself felt. Her request that the Selsey church should be pulled down and rebuilt two miles nearer her home had to be carried out.

Luckily other means were found to restore the church of the abandoned Elsted church, and it is still used as a chapel.

But as the trees grew higher and the undergrowth thicker round St. Mary of Treyford, this sister church

Chaplin May Talk In His Next Film

Charlie Chaplin is expected to talk from the screen for the first time in his next film.

He has told intimate friends—according to New York Variety—that he will make a talkie, speaking himself, for business as much as for artistic reasons. He has been heard only once from the screen, singing a mock French song in "Modern Times," two years ago.

Mae's Matiest!

New York. Miss Mae West, who arrived here for a visit, brought a new phrase. Gone is the old "Come up and see me sometime."

Now she smiles and says, "Son, you're one of the nicest men I ever leaned against!"

Five thousand "fans" invaded the railway station to greet the star, who had not seen New York since 1932.

WHO WANTS TO BUY AN ELEPHANT'S TUSK?

Elephants' tusks are being auctioned in Mincing Lane, where London's biggest ivory sale for ten years started recently.

Thirty-nine tons of varying kinds of ivory—from "scrivellers," the tiny milk-tusks of baby elephants used largely for shaving brushes, to huge tusks—were to be disposed of.

Some ivory is classed as "hard," some as "soft." France uses only hard ivory, but owing to the exchange rate is buying very little in Britain.

The bulk of Indian ivory goes to Japan. African ivory comes to Europe; the bulk of it to Antwerp and London.

Most of the ivory sold in London goes to Germany for piano-keys.

Eighth Year Of Scottsboro Case Defence Opens

NINE NEGROES SEIZED BY A POSSE ON MARCH 25, 1931

By THOMAS A. DOZIER
United Press Staff Correspondent

Birmingham.

SEVEN YEARS ago, a posse of muttering white farmers flagged a freight train near Paint Rock, Ala., and seized nine Negroes who were "hobobing" a ride.

Sheriff's deputies, fearing mob violence, rescued the nine from the posse and sped them away to the Jackson county jail at Scottsboro, an insignificant northern Alabama town of fewer than 1,500 population.

The nine gave their names to the jailer as Heywood Patterson, Clarence Norris, Andy Wright, Charlie Weems, Ocie Powell, Olen Montgomery, Willie Roberson, Eugene Williams and Roy Wright. They were accused of raping two white women aboard the moving freight train.

TWO WOMEN THEIR ACCUSERS

The women—Victoria Price and Ruby Bates—told officers the Negroes threatened them with a knife and forced their male companions to jump from the train.

The white boys had notified authorities to stop the train, and the posse was formed quickly. The affair attracted only mild interest in Birmingham. Newspapers that afternoon used the story under subordinate headlines on inside pages.

To-day, the word Scottsboro has become the battle cry of liberal groups.

NEW LITIGATION OPENS

The internationally famous cases entered their eighth year of involved litigation in state and Federal courts.

Four of the original nine defendants are free under a compromise reached at the last series of trials at Decatur, Ala., in July, 1937.

One—Ocie Powell—is serving a 20-year sentence at Almore state prison for stabbing a deputy during an escape attempt. He was wounded by another officer in the break, but recovered. He was reported seriously ill recently, but prison attaches said he is able to be up. The Scottsboro defence is reported to have "washed his hands" of Powell, and perhaps his only hope for freedom is a parole.

Haywood Patterson, central defendant, who has been tried and convicted four times by a jury, has lost what apparently was his last appeal to the United States Supreme Court and faces a 75-year prison sentence. gubernatorial clemency also apparently is his chief chance of leaving this prison cell.

HELD IN BIRMINGHAM JAIL

Clarence Norris, Andy Wright and Charlie Weems, all convicted anew at the July trials, are held in jails at Birmingham and Montgomery awaiting disposition of new appeals before the state Supreme Court. Appeals to the state high tribunal were designed to be the first steps in a new path to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Norris is under death sentence. Wright faces a 99-year term and Weems one of 75 years.

The Scottsboro defence, headed by Samuel Leibowitz, New York attorney, entered a new phase last week with the appeal move.

GRAVES' ATTITUDE NOT

Gov. Bibb Graves, whose term expires next January, has declined to disclose his attitude on the case. Throughout his administration, he has made a strong bid for labour and other liberal elements, and some observers thought that he might grant pardons to the four Negroes as a "fourth act" of his term.

He is not seeking re-election. The Scottsboro defence committee was reported to be negotiating with several attorneys to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Clarence Watts of Huntsville. Watts quit the case last summer after a disagreement with other members of the legal staff.

Woman Who Talked—And Talked

—BY A JUDGE

MR. Justice Hawke, spoke in light vein, at a Ladies' Night dinner at London Press Club last month.

I am a great believer in the Press. What would the future history of the present judiciary be if it were not for the Press?

How would the future know that I did not know what a "hang-over" was if it were not for the Press?

An old woman who lived in Wadebridge, Cornwall, was a confirmed talker.

On the death of her husband, a friend of mine went to the house to sympathise with the relatives, and asked the daughter what were her father's last words.

"He didn't have any last words, mister," she replied, "mother was with him right to the end."

Countess Died Because Her Hair Was Long

THE story of a countess who, although wealthy, lived alone and feared intruders so much that she kept a revolver and always had the door of her flat secured by a stout chain, was told at a Brighton inquest recently.

Very few people, and never any woman, were allowed in the flat in Montpelier Crescent.

Despite her 84 years, Mme. de Parravicini retained traces of great beauty, and went about the flat with her hair hanging almost to her waist.

It was her beautiful hair, coupled with the fact that she chose to cook a meal over a gas ring at three o'clock in the morning, that led to her death.

As she bent down to pick up the frying pan her hair brushed the lighted gas and burst into flames.

She was severely burnt about the face and head, and died a week later.

Big Battle Looms Near Lanfeng

Shanghai, June 2. Japanese reports state that fourteen divisions of Chinese troops are drawing up in a new line between Lanfeng and Kalfeng under the personal direction of General Chiang Kai-shek. It is anticipated that the biggest battle on the Lunghai front is imminent to the west of Lanfeng.

According to Chinese sources, General Dohara's troops attacked the Chinese north of Lanfeng after several thousand reinforcements had crossed the river at Kwantai in an effort to cut the Lunghai line between Lanfeng and Kalfeng.—United Press.

LUYI CAPTURED

Tokyo, June 2. Information from northern Honan province states that the Japanese detachment of the Japanese forces operating westward along the Lunghai Railway on Wednesday morning occupied Luyi, a strategically important base of operations about 15 miles west of Poshien, already in Japanese hands.

Japanese forces driving on to Kalfeng opened an attack late in the afternoon on Khsien and succeeded in penetrating a corner of the walled town at 5 o'clock. Khsien, the report stated, is an important stronghold for Chinese troops being 20 miles south of Lanfeng and 30 miles south-east of Kalfeng.—Domei.

Berlin, June 2. Morning newspapers have used the latest Eger incident to renew sharp anti-Czech-Slovak attacks.

The so-called Eger incident occurred when a Czech soldier fired two shots when a crowd threatened him.

Prague, June 2. It is officially announced that the colonel of the battalion to which the N.C.O. concerned in the Eger incident belonged has been relieved of his command.

There has been one woman Cabinet Minister in England—bespectacled Miss Margaret Bondfield, who was Minister of Labour during the Socialist regime of 1929 to 1931—but she was reputed to be a little over-generous with the country's money.

TWENTY DOLLAR
PASSPORTS

A Chinese from a war-stricken town of the coast or interior, where Japanese bombers or sea raiders have very considerably reduced the expectation of life and made all business a precarious sort of game, must have twenty dollars in his pocket or he will not be received here. Officially he is not a refugee. This is the effect of instructions issued by the Hongkong authorities to the police and disclosed to the Telegraph on Tuesday. The police are watching ships and trains and preventing Chinese without this unusual form of passport entering the Colony. Those who lack it are simply to be shipped back to the places whence they came—unless, of course, some friend or relative comes forward and takes the responsibility of providing for them. Just why the Government fixed upon $20 has not been disclosed. Presumably it is felt that that sum would provide food and lodging of a sort for a month and by that time the emergency in China might be over. Vain hope. The Government, with all respect, should not be planning a month ahead, but for a year at least in this connection. There are a good many thousands of Chinese with $20 and there is simply no room for them here under present conditions. If they continue coming in their thousands all the anti-eviction legislation and rent control schemes that can be conceived will not make Hongkong any more comfortable residentially. There are three ways at least of tackling this problem. The first, as the Telegraph has frequently suggested, is to establish refugee centres in the New Territories, possibly with the assistance of organised charities; the second is to close the frontier altogether; the third might well be in the direction of an international appeal to Japan to respect certain refugee areas in and about all Chinese cities, which would be marked suitably so that aircraft would not attack them mistakenly. These could be supervised with foreign assistance and probably would receive medical and financial aid from abroad. If, as the Japanese appear to intend, Canton is to continue to be a target for bombing fleets, the population must make up its mind either to risk death and remain, or find some suitable and secure sanctuary near at hand. At present Hong-

What Do You Know About These TWELVE WOMEN M.P.s?

UNLIKE the little nigger boys, the number of women M.P.s increases, and now there are 12. After the general election nine women were returned to Parliament, but with the victory of the Socialist, Dr. Sumnerskill, who took her seat in the House recently, women have won three by-elections since 1935.

It was in October 1918 that Mr. Herbert Samuel (now Lord Samuel) moved the resolution in the House that it was desirable to make it legal for women to be members of Parliament, and that resolution was passed by 274 votes to 25.

I have spent hours trying to discover what exactly our women M.P.s had done. I found that they had talked—and talked in many cases with authority—on every conceivable subject. But, honestly, I could not trace one major Act that had been passed of which the women can rightly call themselves the prime movers.

Lady Astor, who was the first woman M.P. to take her seat in the House, and has represented the Sutton Division of Plymouth since 1919, is still the foremost woman member.

[Actually a Sinn Fein woman, Countess Markievicz, had been previously elected, but did not go to the House.]

Lady Astor has become a hostess for the Conservative Party, entertaining at her London house in St. James's and her riverside home at Cliveden. She is always neatly dressed in a black tailor-made suit with a white collar, which shows up against the drab clothes worn by the men of the House.

She is the most talkative member, keeping up a continual conversation with Opposition members, such as Communist William Gallacher and Independent Labour Maxton. Her usual comment is, "Go to Russia." Perhaps after the events of last week she will be more careful about telling members to go to foreign countries.

Flies Her Own Plane

THERE sits nearest to Lady Astor Mrs. C. M. Tate, who now represents the Frome division of Somerset—formerly having been M.P. for Willesden West.

She was born in St. Helena but is no political exile, being now in the thick of the fray. She flies her own aeroplane, is keen on gardening, and seems to talk chiefly on chickens, shops, and servants.

Another woman who attracts attention is Miss Thelma Cazalet, who has represented East Islington since 1931. She previously had considerable L.C.C. experience and is now an alderman of the County of London.

She combines music with sport, being a proficient tennis player, even having partnered her schoolday girl friend Miss Megan Lloyd George—Opposition Liberal M.P. for Anglesey—in tournaments.

When she has papers to read she puts on and takes off her spectacles in the most lawyer-like way. If it assists—I do not think it does—a parliamentary career she is a water diver. So is Geoffrey Shakespeare, M.P. for Norwich, but then he is at the Admiralty.

Miss Cazalet is the only woman who has any official position in this Government.

When She Talks Of War
THE Duchess of Atholl, Unionist member for Kinross and West Perth, and now a back bench, was at one time Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education, and sat on the front bench.

She is no longer in the Government, but is one of its severest critics, being very much an aristocratic rebel. She is tall, thin, dark, with a lean face.

Her pets are at the moment Basque children, but it is terrifying when this quiet woman talks of war, for she will recount the most lurid details in the calmest way for a longer time than almost any other speaker.

The other women National Conservatives are Viscountess Davidson (Hemel Hempstead), Miss Florence Horsburgh (Dundee), and Miss Irene Ward (Wallsend-on-Tyne).

Lady Davidson gained her seat in a by-election last year when her husband was raised to peerage. The mother of four children, she is always well dressed, combining her political life with fox-hunting and entertaining.

Miss Florence Horsburgh is the senior member for Dundee. In 1936 she created a precedent by being the first woman to move the reply to the Address from the Throne on the opening of Parliament.

She has attacked Red Biddy, the Scottish methylated spirits concoction which was a menace to the impoverished, and the B.B.C. for attacking the Prime Minister.

She is interested in jute, for Dundee is the home of jute, jam, and journalists. I cannot trace her having been interested in the latter two J.s. She has by far the best voice of the women members.

Miss Irene Ward knows more about coal than any woman, and perhaps more than most M.P.s. Some believe that she is the best type of Conservative woman member, and she does not waste an opportunity to raise the question of coal and miners.

So much for the Conservatives. Now we come to Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of ex-Premier David and brother of Major Gwilym, who together form a kind of independent Liberal Party. Recently, when a bard at an Eisteddfod at Caernarvon, she was called "Megan of the Golden Voice."

She uses her voice frequently and often effectively.

Hunger-Marching
THE two Socialist women members are Miss Ellen Wilkinson and Mrs. Agnes Hardie. It will be with them that Dr. Sumnerskill will sit and vote.

Miss Ellen Wilkinson, although the smallest M.P., makes herself heard. She has by far the most biting tongue of any member, and makes slashing accusations against the Government.

She claims to have spoken since she was five, and now, "five feet nothing," she thinks nothing of hunger-marching with unemployed from Jarrow her constituency, to London. There are few things she likes more than careering off to fraternise with down-trodden proletariats on the Continent.

Mrs. Agnes Hardie (Springburn, Glasgow), widow of George Hardie, M.P., and sister-in-law of Keir Hardie, is the opposite. She speaks little and

Stop those Crazy Comedies and Give Us Films We Can Believe In

DEAR Mrs. Brown,—
There will be no film famine this year, next year, any year or ever. I think you can be quite sure about that.

Of course, there has been a lot of talk about a serious shortage of films, but then there always is.

Producers like to talk about it, since that sends up the prices they get for their pictures. Cinema-owners like to talk about it, since that sends producers scurrying to make more pictures, and that sends the prices of pictures down.

So round and round they go, chasing each other, trying to scare each other, and getting nowhere.

But you are quite right in believing that the film world is in a dither. It is not exactly in a panic, but, as they say in Hollywood, it has the jitters.

And so it should. In the past few years it has indeed asked for it.

Star-Making

YOU make a grand point when you say film stars are not as likeable as they used to be. That is profoundly true.

And why?
Simply because so many splendid stars have been torn away from their personalities by the craze for crazy comedy.

I wish you could have been with me the other day when Samuel Goldwyn was talking about star-making.

Nobody in the world knows more about star-making than Samuel Goldwyn, and this is what he said to me:

"Actors and actresses—I am not interested in finding them. Anybody can be trained to act. I took for personalities."

"Personalities is something that is given to you by fate. If you do not have it, there is nothing you can do about it."

Coming from Samuel Goldwyn, that is very interesting.

Living Their Parts

AMONG the stars you like best you name: Myrna Loy, Shirley Temple, Gracie Fields, William Powell, George Formby, Errol Flynn.

Have you realised that all these players and others, like Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Sonja Henie, and Deanna Durbin, are always themselves?

They are not so much acting as living their parts, and the actor who does it best is Gary Cooper. You want him to be himself or, as you say, you insist on his being in character.

Says SETON
MARGRAVE

What films at the moment are so popular that cinemas like the Stoll Picture Theatre are breaking away from their one-week-only policy to run them for two and three weeks?

Just "100 Men and a Girl," with Deanna Durbin, and "The Prisoner of Zenda," with Ronald Colman.

Back To Reality

YOU like Errol Flynn because you associate him with "Captain Blood" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade." You will welcome him in "The Adventures of Robin Hood."

And the film most in demand for reissue to-day is Norma Shearer's "Smilin' Through."

You will recall some years ago the films of shady morals and shallow wit we called sophisticated comedies. Norma Shearer had made several of these films before she came to London.

I told her then that she was throwing away all the good will she had ever earned, and I talked her into making "Smilin' Through." Her making that film was entirely my idea, and it was a good idea even if I say it as shouldn't.

To-day there are a lot of people in Hollywood I would like to talk to—all those excellent players who are appearing in crazy comedies and making themselves ridiculous. They are destroying their personalities all because they are unable to distinguish between what is real and what is rubbish.

A film industry which publishes the wonder of throwing tomatoes at an opera singer is really throwing tomatoes at itself.

Mrs. Brown, I am sure you would begin to like nearly all film stars again if films would only return to human drama.

There is really no reason for delay in view of the tremendous success of pictures such as "Hurricane," "In Old Chicago," and "A Yank at Oxford."

There will be still less reason when we see films like "Test Pilot," with Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, and Spencer Tracy, or "Marie Antoinette," with Norma Shearer—tales of real men and real women—of romance and reality.

The job of a film is to present the romance of reality. Our film-makers should now remember this. They have been ga-ga long enough.

PONIES TO REST AFTER WHITSUN RACE MEETING

CHIEF INTEREST CENTRED UPON LANTAO H'CAP

FIRST HALF OF SEASON NOW COMES TO AN END

(By "Captain Foster")

Chief interest at the Whitsun Race Meeting (two days of racing) under the auspices of the Hongkong Jockey Club will undoubtedly be centred in the Lantao Handicap for "B" class China ponies, for a big special dollar cash sweep is conducted on this important event.

Attention of racing enthusiasts is drawn to the fact that the first saddling bell to-morrow will be rung at 1.30 p.m., but on Whitsun Monday it will be chimed at 12.30 p.m., as there are two races before tillin. The first saddling bell after lunch on Monday will be pealed at 2.30 p.m. sharp.

After the running of the Lantao Handicap, which is the last contest on the second day of the Whitsun Carnival, the Hongkong Jockey Club will close the curtain for the first half season and there will be no more flat racing at Happy Valley until September 24.

It is "old" custom to turn Australian and China ponies out to grass for a short time every summer and it is reliably learned that some owners have already made arrangements for their steeds to spend the holidays at Fanning and Macao. Mr. E. Moller's Silhouette, the triple crown winner and the pride of Shanghai, is already up north enjoying a good rest. Our ponies have been racing without a break since February last and I am sure it has been monotonous to many of them to see the same cinder track every day for the last six months.

REST DESERVED. There are, however, quite a few owners, who have a prejudice against turning out the ponies, owing to the persecution of flies which attack them in the pastures. It will be recalled that Mr. Macgregor's Strathroy did not summer too well last year on account of skin trouble and as a result he was ineligible for the Queensland Autumn Champions. Opinions, of course, differ greatly as regards the wisdom of the proceeding, but at any rate, I am of the candid opinion that the ponies certainly deserve and are entitled to some sort of relaxation.

For the last two years the Lantao Handicap has been confined to "D" class China ponies whereas on Whitsun Monday, this event is to be contested among the "B" class China ponies. The alteration in the conditions of the race does not materially affect the field in any way, for it has attracted 13 entries against a ratio of 11 and 15 as compared with previous years. Instead of a sprint, the run is over a distance from the two mile post, once round and in, and the lucky drawers will have a longer time to see the running of their ponies. The ban of winners on the first day of the Carnival has not been inserted and owners should take a note of this. The winner in 1936 was Sylvandale (Mr. B. Proulx) who presented a first prize of $23,697.76 to the drawer of ticket No. 6103 whilst in 1937 the holder of ticket No. 20550 drew Laughing Girl (Mr. H. C. Pih) and received $23,642.88. At time of writing the sale of tickets on the Lantao Handicap is nearing the 140,000 mark and it will not surprise me to see 160,000 in which case, the first prize is guaranteed over $63,000.

WILL GLADIATOR BE ABLE TO WIN JUNE HANDICAP

Difficult Task Lies Ahead Of Her

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Northcote will be present in time to-morrow for the opening event, the June Handicap for "A" class China ponies over a mile, in which Gladiator is definitely a runner. The bay gelding from Government House ran a smart race in the Mount Gough Handicap over six furlongs on May 7, and had an easy passage. It was a great pity that Lady Northcote was not here to see her pony win by two and a half lengths. To-morrow Gladiator is at the bottom of the assessment and I doubt very much whether Mr. Proulx will be able to draw 140 lbs. However, with the inclusion of such stalwarts as Bear Claw (Mr. D. Black), Cameronian (Mr. Encarnacion), Desert Chief (Mr. Poy) and King's Warden (Mr. S. C. Liong), I am afraid that Gladiator will find a tough proposition to reach the home base ahead of these four champion ponies. I have no confirmation, but it has been whispered to me that Bear Claw will not accept on account of the heat and furthermore he is going to have an easy outing in the Whitsun Plate on Monday with no opposition. The conditions of the latter event have barred Cameronian, Desert Chief and King's Warden. In any case I cannot see anything to beat Desert Chief, to be followed by Cameronian and King's Warden.

STRATHROY ABSENT FROM RACE

Lancashire Chips Has Advantage

On the strength of her fine performance at the last meeting, Courtling Eve holds the post of honour in the Bondi Handicap over six furlongs, but no explanation has been offered for the absence of Strathroy among the list of entries. However, both Electron and Lancashire Chips are well in the handicap with only 135 lbs. to shoulder which means a pull of 20 lbs. against Courtling Eve. As I write, the prospect of firm going is bright and it looks that Lancashire Chips will make amends. The present track record of six

ELLIOTT TO RIDE SHREW II

London, June 2. The following alterations have been made to the list of probable starters in the Oaks:

Wrickaby rides Lady Noel and Elliott, who rode Bois Rousset to victory in the Derby, will take out Shrew II.—Reuter.

LOUIS XIV NOT TO ACCEPT

The Whitsun Handicap for subscription griffin of this Club of this season over a mile is a new event, replacing the Coronation Cup of last year, and it is highly anticipated. Louis XIV, the champion pony, has been entered, but it is authoritatively learned that he will not accept for the chestnut gelding belonging to Mr. S. W. Tang is now in Macao chewing grass. Flannels, after turning the tables on Louis XIV and Smiling Thru in the Tytam Handicap "A" division over a mile on March 12, has not appeared in public and his absence from the course during the early mornings has been very conspicuous. I doubt this dun pony of Mr. F. C. Hall will line up. Smiling Thru (Mr. Encarnacion) has no doubt the best chance to register another win for Mr. Eu Tong-sen, but he will have to be at his best to stave off the challenge of Deiko (Mr. Proulx), Desert Star (Mr. Tang), Piet Hein (Mr. Pih), and Salvage Master (Mr. Hinde). Of this bunch, Deiko and Piet Hein are in the pink of condition. The latter's gallop on Wednesday morning was very convincing and Piet Hein is a good bet to have a spare $5 each way.

CUSTOMS HANDICAP (FIRST SECTION)

In the Customs Handicap (first section) for "C" class China ponies, I would like to remind readers not to overlook the fact that Lancashire Lass was officially fourth in the West River Handicap run a fortnight ago on a going which was not much fancied by the mare. The journey too was out of Lancashire Lass' reach, but to-morrow the grey has a special liking for six furlongs and she has my vote for a win. Laughing Girl and Rose-Queen should follow in the rear.

FIRST LEG OF DAILY DOUBLE

The first leg of the daily double is on the Stonecutters Plate for the last line of defence over six furlongs and the event has drawn 27 entries. It is not an easy job to spot the winner, for the list consists of first

DERBY NIGHT DINNER AT BUCKINGHAM

London, June 2. There was a historic event at the Derby Night dinner held at Buckingham Palace when Evelyn Dail, a 20-year-old American blonde, sang "Nice Work if You Can Get It."

Among the audience were Their Majesties, the King and Queen, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy and Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh.—United Press.

A Keen Struggle Anticipated

A keen struggle is anticipated in the Warwick Farm Handicap for Australian subscription griffin of this season that have not won $1,000 or more and the test is from the two mile post, once round and in. The book of forms shows that Lucky Lad is about the best 'un, but we know very little regarding A Lovely Time, Cape York and King's Privilege, all having started only twice since February. In course of preparation for the Annual Race Meeting and if my memory serves, King's Privilege was given a fast gallop over the champion course and the bay mare of the Dynasty's stable came out of the test with flying colours, covering one and a quarter miles in 2.31 flat. King's Privilege won a grand race at the Easter session and she may repeat her performance. I may be wrong, but I am of the opinion that Rex belongs to another street and we shall know more of this to-morrow. The Buffer has not much lead to carry, but Boris, Lily and Sydney Bridge are at the bottom of the ladder with only 135 lbs. Of course their chances of presenting their card to the judges are very remote.

SECOND LEG OF DAILY DOUBLE

Easy To Spot Winner In Shantin Handicap

Spotting the second leg of the daily double will not be difficult, for there are, in my estimation, only a few races to be considered in the Shantin Handicap confined to "A" class China ponies over a mile. At the last meeting there were two divisions among the "D" rates, but these two sections have been merged into one and the event is to be ridden by novice jockeys. Election Time, which is at the top of the tree with the limit lead, will be looked after by Mr. Colson and the combination, it will be remembered, paid the biggest dividend of the year.

Mrs. Moody Beaten By Miss Hardwick

London, June 2. Mrs. Helen Willis Moody was beaten in the fourth round of the St. George's Hill tennis tournament at Weybridge today by Miss Mary Hardwick, the British Wightman Cup player. After losing the first set easily, Miss Hardwick came back strongly to take the next two. The scores were 1-6, 6-3, 6-3 in favour of Miss Hardwick.—Reuter.

Gloucester Collapses After Lunch

O'Reilly Gets In Among The Wickets

London, June 2. After scoring 61 runs for two wickets by lunch-time today, Gloucestershire collapsed sensationally in their match against the Australian cricket tourists at Bristol and were all out for 78.

W. J. O'Reilly was almost unplayable after lunch, and finished up with an analysis of six for 22.

At close of play, the Australians had scored 151 for seven wickets. C. L. Badcock was top-scorer with 51. A. L. Hassett had 29, W. A. Brown 18, Chipperfield 9 and Stan McCabe was dismissed for a "duck".—Reuter.

TEST TRIAL

London, June 2. The "Rest" scored 298 in the Test trial at Lord's against an England XI. Verity of Yorkshire was the most successful bowler with four wickets for 71 runs.

The England XI replied with 204 for four wickets. W. J. Edrich, the young Middlesex professional, made 80, followed by Leonard Hutton with 40, W. R. Hammond 29 not out, R. E. S. Wyatt 24 and J. Hardstaff 4 not out.—Reuter.

Next in the allotment of the poundage comes Valorous with 165 lbs. and the old veteran will be ridden by Mr. K. I. Ip. When these two met in the Taimoshan Handicap (first section) over a mile, Election Time (winner) was in receipt of three pounds from Valorous, who dead-headed with Final Triumph for third place whereas to-morrow Valorous will receive the same weight from Election Time. Taking everything in the balance there should be a dead heat between Election Time and Valorous. Mr. H. A. Botelho has the choice of either Gold Coin or the stable mate, Gold Sovereign, and judging by the try-outs I have reason to say that he prefers Gold Coin. It looks that the rest of the entries will only make up the field.

HONEYMOON EVE LOOKS GOOD TO BEAT THE FIELD

Despite Penalty Of Six Pounds

In the Lead Mine Handicap for "B" class China ponies over six furlongs, it looks a good thing for Honeymoon Eve to duplicate her success when she had no trouble in winning the Shing Mun Handicap over the same course at the last meeting. For a win of one and a half lengths Honeymoon Eve has been penalised six pounds but that is nothing to her. There is no doubt that she is a fast lady over short distances and this was proved in the year of her prime when, carrying 161 lbs., she won the Morrison Hill Handicap (six furlongs) in 1.25 1/4 on April 3, 1936. This was certainly a marvellous performance for a griffin. Humdrum Eve, another stable companion, is also dangerous and the best is to have your money on Mr. Pih's mount. Boolat Bay has a good chance provided the going is sloppy. A keen tussle is assured.

LAST EVENT Large Field Will Probably Start

I expect all the ponies will accept the last event, the Customs Handicap (second section) and the journey is looking extremely well and it is about time for him to cross over the line ahead of the pack. Laughing Buddha is very good for short sprint and so is Royal Highness.

My final selections will appear on to-morrow's issue and also on Whitsun Monday.

HAMMOND SHOULD BE A POPULAR ENGLAND CAPTAIN

A Great Pity That Wyatt Cannot Play In Tests

AS was expected after he had been asked to lead the England XI against the "Rest" in the Test trial which is being held at Lord's for the purpose of choosing the men to play against the Australians, Walter Hammond, the Gloucester, and England cricketer who turned amateur at the end of the last cricket season at Home, has been invited by the M.C.C. to lead the team in the first Test which commences at Nottingham on June 10. He is the logical choice for not only is he fully qualified for the job—he has led the Players against the Gentlemen on several occasions—but at the moment he is one of the very few amateurs who are worth their paces in an England Test for their batting. The fact of Gloucestershire's popularity with the crowd, but whether he will be equally as popular with his

Grimmett's Ideal Team

Four Englishmen—Hobbs, Hammond, Larwood, and Tate—are included in the ideal team chosen by C. V. Grimmett, from players whom he has seen play.

Continuing his memoirs in the Melbourne Herald, Grimmett submits the following team:—J. B. Hobbs (England), W. R. Hammond (England), W. Bardsley (Australia), C. G. Macartney (Australia), D. G. Bradman (Australia), W. W. Armstrong (Australia), J. M. Gregory (Australia), H. B. Cameron (South Africa), H. Larwood (England), M. W. Tate (England), and W. J. O'Reilly (Australia).

Grimmett says he would open the bowling with Larwood and Tate, relieve Larwood with Gregory, and follow with Armstrong and O'Reilly. The bowling would be immensely strong, and he would hate to bowl at the batsmen.

It is noteworthy that Grimmett includes the late Horace Cameron in preference to W. A. Oldfield.

Wally Hammond To lead England against the Australians.

BRITAIN CONCEDED A CHANCE

In Walker Cup Golf Contest

London, June 2. Britain has been conceded a splendid chance of winning the Walker Cup golf contest against the United States for the first time, although the Americans are 6-4 on favourites.

However, the betting is likely to sway in favour of Britain if to-day's north-easterly gale continues.

FOOTBALL STAR COMING EAST

Monterey, Cal., June 2. Campbell, the former Stanford quarter-back, said to-day that he will be leaving for Shanghai in the next few weeks after his marriage to Miss Doris Dale, of Monterey. He and his bride will be making the trip for their honeymoon.—United Press.

Clem Hill's Opinion

CONTRARY to general Australian opinion, Clem Hill, the former Australian Test captain, gives England an equal chance of winning the "Ashes" this summer. "The Australians are not as strong as in 1934," he said. "Too much depends on O'Reilly and Fleetwood-Smith. The latter is sometimes a match-winner."

Soviet Aid For China Anticipated

London, June 2. The Daily Mail's Riga correspondent states that as a result of the Sino-Soviet Pact just signed in Moscow Russia will increase her aid to China and in exchange will receive exclusive privileges there.

The correspondent also reports that the Soviet will send two motorized divisions and 72 war planes to China. United Press.

DENIAL BY QUO

Issues Warning of Forged Arms Documents

London, June 2. Reports from Riga stating that Mr. Sun Fo, before leaving Moscow for an undisclosed destination concluded a nine point agreement with the Soviet according to a privileged position in China against extensive assistance, especially in aeroplanes, guns, machine guns, expert organizers and advisers, both military and administrative, were characterised by Mr. Quo Tai-chi, Chinese Ambassador, interviewed by Reuter, as pure invention, designed to discredit China in the eyes of anti-Soviet nations.

"To the best of my knowledge," he declared, "Mr. Sun Fo is still in Moscow."

A sensational advertisement in London and Paris papers by the Chinese Embassy warns against forged documents, purporting to be issued by the Embassy, authorising the holder to purchase arms on behalf of China.

The Chinese Embassy has authorised nobody to carry out such transactions. Scotland Yard and the Paris police are trying to trace the forger.

Dr. W. C. Chen, Counsellor to the Embassy, interviewed by Reuter said that the police have a shrewd idea as to the identity of the culprit of the forgeries. Apparently they were executed on the Continent.

"The French Government sent us," he said, "photostats of one document with bore, an address in Half Moon Street, Piccadilly. It is actually a woman hairdressing establishment."

"How the forger expected to benefit by his trick, especially in view of the rigid control on exports of arms from Britain, we have no notion, but thought it advisable to warn the public." Reuter.

O'Callaghan Becomes A Wrestler

Seeking Fame In United States

London, May 1. The only "one-man team" in the world, Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, the hammer thrower, of Ireland, has become a professional wrestler. He may also do some boxing.

Dr. Pat won world fame by being entered for the Olympic Games as Ireland's "team" in 1928. He was booked for the wrestling and boxing events, but elected to challenge only for the hammer-throwing title.

He won it, too, with a record throw, and repeated his success in 1932. I am not sure of his age, but as he was an Olympic champion 10 years ago, he cannot be so young to be starting business as a wrestler and boxer, says Geoffrey Simpson.

Nevertheless, an Irish-born wrestler and with his Olympic background, he is sure to be popular in America. If he makes good, O'Callaghan aims to return to England towards the end of the year and meet Earl McCready, the British Empire champion, who is trying to re-establish straight catch-as-catch-can.

McCready is still busy campaigning against "all-in" wrestling, which he describes as one large racket, but it seems to me that the "all-in" professors are firmly entrenched, and McCready will need helpers in order to shift them.

OAKS SCRATCHING

London, June 2. Bet Again, Joyflew and tossip have been scratched from the Oaks, to be run to-morrow. Reuter.

by offering to settle numerous border incidents, detention of ships and fishery questions, while the real motive is to determine the extent of Soviet assistance to China, according to a Vladivostok report received here.

M. Mikhail Slavutsky, the Soviet Ambassador to Tokyo, left Tokyo late last month and will not return to that post. The absence of a Soviet Ambassador in the Japanese capital indicates that Moscow is not inclined to take up any serious talk with the Japanese Foreign Minister.

Marshal Vasily Bludner, Commander-in-Chief of the Soviet Far Eastern Forces, is reported to be on his way back to Harbin, from Moscow where he visited twice in less than three weeks, the second time. It is said, to meet Mr. Sun Fo. International.

NEUSEL IN VIENNA

Lazek May Meet Winner Of Louis-Schmeling Fight

Vienna, May 2. Walter Neusel, German heavyweight, has arrived in Vienna with the intention of fixing a bout with Heinz Lazek, European champion.

So far, however, Lazek's manager has declined to come to an agreement on the grounds that he has already entered into negotiations with the organizers of the Louis-Schmeling fight in the hope of getting Lazek matched with the leading American heavyweight and included in the programme of the Louisville encounter on June 22 in New York.

Should the American object be materialised, Lazek will leave for New York on June 9. Trans-Ocean.

TECHNICAL KNOCK-OUT

New York, June 1. Tuffy Pierpont, 117 lb., of Oakland, technically knocked out Little Caesar, 118 lb., in the sixth round of a 10 round bout in Oakland.

A YANK AT OXFORD

Copyright 1938 by Lewis's Inc.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR
Leo Sheridan's over-confident ways grate on his British classmates at Oxford, who but him as a good athlete, but an American braggart. Molly Beaumont, sister of a member of the class, is the only person to disagree and to like Leo for him self. When Leo is kept out of a relay race in which he has been asked to participate, he deliberately trips Paul Beaumont on the track and runs the last quarter-mile to victory. Paul's measures are planned by the student body, in a group they perform the traditional rite of taking Leo from his dormitory and removing his trousers.

Chapter Eight

It took very little time for the students, working in harmonious efficiency, to accomplish the removal of the American boy's trousers.
Leo stood alone and furious as, their mission completed, the undergraduates broke up into little sniping groups; he glared after them, frozen to the spot with shame and humiliation. He was not, however, the faithful Beaters was before him. With a little bow, the old man handed him a pair of trousers, neatly folded.
"Will that be all, sir?"
"Not on your life," Leo said angrily. "For a few guys I have in mind, this day is just beginning."
"Don't take it to heart, sir," Scatter begged. "There's no disgrace to being de-beated. Why, sir, I recall a Prime Minister in this very Quad, and in those days gentlemen were no overgarments."
Leo wasn't amused. "They might do that to a Prime Minister, but not to a Yank."

they can't do it to an American and get away with it!" he exclaimed.

Determined on his next step, Leo went directly to the porter's lodge. "Have you seen Paul Beaumont?"

"I have, sir," the porter replied. "He's somewhere, sir," was the reply.

Making straight for the town, Leo entered the first of the three streets. He looked around in disappointment. "Finally he's spotted several times," he muttered.

"I'm looking for Paul Beaumont," he announced firmly.

They all looked at him curiously, and for a moment made no answer. "He was here, sir," he said finally.

Leo looked at the porter. "Try the Queen's Head."

As he stalked out, Leo heard snickers behind him.

"We'd ask you to go down, Sheridan, but the action might be painful," one called out.

Out in the open once more, Leo walked his way past three men walking in the same direction.

He looked at them. "I don't know if it's the same three who were de-beating me," he said.

"No, sir," they replied. "They're not the same."

Leo looked at them. "I don't know if it's the same three who were de-beating me," he said.

"No, sir," they replied. "They're not the same."

Leo looked at them. "I don't know if it's the same three who were de-beating me," he said.

"No, sir," they replied. "They're not the same."

Leo looked at them. "I don't know if it's the same three who were de-beating me," he said.

"No, sir," they replied. "They're not the same."

Leo looked at them. "I don't know if it's the same three who were de-beating me," he said.

"Hey! Beaumont!" he called out grimly, following Paul toward the rear wall. Abruptly he stopped short as he saw Mrs. Craddock sitting on a bench in the corner.

"Se you're wearing your trousers!" she chided. "How modest!"

"I'd like to see you a minute, Beaumont," went on Lee, disregarding her.

"Nothing would give me greater pleasure," Paul replied smilingly. He turned to Mrs. Craddock. "Evidently our Yank is looking for further punishment."

"Oh, yeah? Let's see what you can do without your gang behind you," Leo said.

With this, he swung at Paul. They exchanged fast, fierce blows for a few seconds. Suddenly the door burst open. Wavertree rushed in. He waved his hands frantically as he tried to stop the battle.

"Buller!" he yelled. "Buller, I tell you!"

Paul dropped his fists. "We'll finish this later," he panted.

As Leo and Paul made for the alley, a bulky Buller charged into the room. Wavertree bravely threw himself against him to impede his progress and permit the others to escape.

"I am definitely a member of this university, and am also wearing trousers," he insisted, but the Buller pushed him off.

Leo was panic-stricken as he hid behind the door and now, as the Buller started to pass him, Leo's fist shot out. The Buller dropped. Neither Leo nor Wavertree had seen Leo strike the blow.

"You're hurt, old chap?" He asked solicitously, lifting him to a sitting position.

The Buller stared at him for a brief instant. Then, mechanically, he said:

"Good evening, sir. Are you a member of this university?"

The next morning, Paul stood before the Dean. Simmons, the Buller who had been struck, was also present.

"I do not understand this, Mr. Beaumont," the Dean said. "You persist in saying you did not strike Simmons."

"I did, sir."

"And you will not tell me who did?"

"Sorry, sir," Paul said, shaking his head.

The Dean turned to Simmons. "You are certain it was Mr. Beaumont who struck you?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Thank you. That will be all," Simmons left the room. The Dean turned back to Paul.

"You are certain it was Mr. Beaumont who struck you?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Thank you. That will be all," Simmons left the room. The Dean turned back to Paul.

"You are certain it was Mr. Beaumont who struck you?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Thank you. That will be all," Simmons left the room. The Dean turned back to Paul.

"You are certain it was Mr. Beaumont who struck you?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Thank you. That will be all," Simmons left the room. The Dean turned back to Paul.

"You are certain it was Mr. Beaumont who struck you?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Thank you. That will be all," Simmons left the room. The Dean turned back to Paul.

Chapter Nine

Molly, running after her brother, was angry and puzzled. "Why are you trying to shield that Craddock person?" she demanded.

"That has nothing to do with it! I told you, and I'll continue to tell you," her friend Sheridan hit that Buller.

Molly stepped back. "You've been beaten to Leo from the first," said Molly, stepping back. "But this is really too much."

"Too much," Paul said bitterly. "To have your own sister think you a liar."

"Molly, I'm sorry," he said. "But, Molly, I've seen you. I realize Leo played a rotten trick on you at the race yesterday, but he's had his punishment."

"It hasn't even started," returned Paul, shaking his head. "And if you have any loyalty at all, you'll stop being seen with him."

Molly's voice was icy as she replied. "You reminded me once that your private life is your own."

"All right," Paul snapped. "Make yourself cheap by running around with him. I can't stop you."

"No, you can't! I cut him yesterday because of you...but now I wish I hadn't!"

"Now I know where you stand!" Paul retorted.

Molly hesitated for a moment; then, madly, she walked out. Paul went to the window, his expression bitter. As he stood there, the bells began to chime. Suddenly there was a knock at the door.

It was Leo, one of his eyes dark and a little swollen, but still a cocky Leo. "Remember me?" he asked in bantering challenge.

"Look here, Sheridan," Paul said angrily. "Are you going through with this?"

"Why not?" Leo asked calmly. "I've always known you were a braggart. Now I know you're a coward and a liar as well. Paul responded furiously.

"Coming from you," Leo replied. "These are practically compliments. I'm tickled to death I hit that Buller, because you're going to take the rap for it. I'm only sorry they're not going to kick you out."

Paul started to take off his coat. "There's only one way to treat your mouth," he said.

"Now we're getting some place," grinned Leo, following the other boy's example. "I've been looking forward to this."

As they faced each other, the bells of Oxford were heard in a glorious burst. Paul paused. He dropped his hands.

"What are you waiting for?" Leo demanded.

"You wouldn't understand this," Paul said bitterly. "But a degree from Oxford means more to me than the extreme pleasure of winning your neck."

He turned and took his coat under his arm. "Got out!" he ordered.

"If I had a hunch that one of those good old British principles would come to your rescue," Leo said maliciously. "As Paul, by sheer will power, restrained himself. Leo stepped into the hallway, almost bumping into Wavertree, Ramsey and Preston. They looked at him inquisitively.

"Hello, Yank," Preston said. "What were you doing in there?"

"I've just been to see poor old Beaumont...to tender my condolences," Leo said with mock sympathy. The three men stared at him, mistaking his tone for one of real concern. And with that moment they began to look upon Leo in a different light—one of respect.

The summer passed. Leo, contrite as he realized the boys had bestowed on him an undeserved virtue, still could not bring himself to the action to clear Paul. In the spring he was again his old self-assured self, but with a difference: no longer was his confidence one of sheer defiance. And now his classmates accepted his attitude with power, good nature.

Paul, alone, was unable to forget. Leo and Paul were together often—they were members of the Cardinal crew—but away from the oar or the locker room the two boys never spoke. Leo tried to be friendly, but Paul would have none of it.

Bobcat Year In Maine

August 1, 1938. Last year was "Bobcat year" in the Maine State. Slaughter of 700 cats cost the state about $11,000. The legislature reduced the bounty from $20 to $15 in 1935 when 911 bobcats were killed.

of it. The British boy's attitude surprised the others, who felt Leo was being a decidedly bad sport about it all. One by one they began to cool toward him.

Molly was no better able to understand Paul's attitude. When they were with one another, however, there was little mention of the strained relationship existing between her brother and Leo.

Early one morning Leo took Molly out on the river in a rowboat. As he started off he looked at her for a minute appreciatively.

"I suppose you know you're beautiful," he said finally, in a strangely gentle voice.

"Why, I've hardly got the sleep out of my eyes," she protested, laughing.

"If that's sleep," said Leo tenderly. "It's beautiful sleep. It's the loveliest sleep I ever saw."

"You're an idiot, and I hope you never regain your sanity," Molly laughed.

Suddenly, however, she seemed to be perturbed. She was listening to something.

"That was Paul's voice..." Leo, too, had heard it. Quickly, he turned the boat in the other direction.

"No," he said. "I know his voice. You're imagining things."

"It's Paul and you know it," she listened again. "And there's a woman with him, and you know who the woman is."

"Why do you bother your pretty head about it?"

"Because it's so dreadfully serious. They're still watching Paul because of that fight he had with the Buller. If they only could see him with her this morning, I know he will be sent down."

"Oh, why couldn't this morning be beautiful...or was it too good to last?"

Leo's face was a study in emotions. "Molly..." he began desperately. "Yes, Leo..."

At that moment, in far-off Lake-dale, Dan Sheridan was preparing for a trip to Oxford. Every letter Leo wrote spoke of Molly, and of Leo's happiness at school. The last one had told of the forthcoming bridge between Oxford and Cambridge.

Leo was at the point of all row events. Dan determined to see Leo stroke Oxford to victory.

There was no doubt in Dan's mind but that Cardinal, guided by Leo, would go to the head of the river in the "bump races" that decided which college would represent the university in the annual classic between Oxford and Cambridge. It took the senior Sheridan a long time to grasp the fundamentals of "bump" racing, but Dean Williams, who had spent three years at Oxford, carefully explained it all to him.

In a "bump race" the shells all started off in single file, because the river at the point of Oxford is too narrow for them to row abreast. The object of the race was for each boat to bump the one ahead of it, without being caught by the boat behind. Should a shell move up to the front without being bumped, it was victorious—literally, at the head of the river.

On the day of the race, the river bank was lined with gay spectators. The summer attire. A long line of racing shells stretched down the river. College barges, flying bunting and pennants and overflowing with gay spectators, had points of vantage.

Molly cheered wildly as the Cardinal shell, stroked by Leo, slowly moved up the river. As it bumped the shell representing Balliol College, the Balliol coxswain lifted his head in token of surrender.

The Cardinal shell roared on. A moment more, and another shell was overtaken. Now there was just one left, that of Christchurch.

"Bump them, Cardinal!" Molly yelled. Row, Leo!

Leo's Cardinal shell, the coxswain was worried as Leo continued to relate the best.

"They can't keep up this stroke!" he called warningly.

"They have to!" Leo panted. "They're the crew bumping on slowly the prow of the Cardinal, clearing the water in the wake of Christchurch. The Cardinal crew bent to their task grimly.

There was a look of consternation on the face of the Christchurch coxswain as Cardinal closed in. Then it was all over. Cardinal, spending on, crashed into the Christchurch boat. For a moment, Christchurch lurched. Then it turned over, its panting crew thrown into the waters of the lake.

Thunderous cheers rolled across from Cardinal supporters. Molly was delicious with joy. Cardinal had gained the win of the river and the honor of representing Oxford against Cambridge.

NEWS OF THE DAY IN PICTURES FROM FAR AND NEAR

Hongkong Telegraph PHOTONEWS

HAPPENINGS AS SEEN BY THE CAMERA'S EYE

During the World War Uncle Sam spent thousands of dollars building an emergency fleet that has been parked idly in the James River, Va., New Orleans, Seattle and other places ever since. Now the Maritime Commission is rehabilitating the ships for a new "emergency." Some of the 113 are considered suitable for further military or commercial use, others for commercial use only. Top panel shows four of the 64 in the Patuxent River, Solomon Island, Md. Left to right, Monticello, Mount Vernon, America and George Washington, the last the ship on which President Wilson made his historic voyage to Europe after the war. Other panels, workmen making repairs and a view from the George Washington.

Fishing villages of the Dutch coast furnished most of the second draft of conscripts for the class of 1938, recently called to service in the army of The Netherlands. Here the fisher lads report for duty at Amerfoort, Utrecht province, with dunnage in basket carriers. Their conscription brought the army to its full strength.

Japanese bombing raids haven't discouraged these two Americans who continue to operate a Chinese Government airplane factory "somewhere in South China." They are Charles Healy Day and his wife, formerly of Ridgefield, N. J. Their factory, established in 1934, has been a constant target for the Japanese.

"Ladies from hell" the Germans called the killed warriors from Scotland, during the World War. Apparently living up to that appellation are these Gordon Highlanders, with their kilts nicely pleated, beating out a fire caused by smoke bombs, at a military demonstration at Aldershot, England. The demonstration was staged for King George and Queen Elizabeth, on their recent visit to the military base, but the fire was something extra.

ITALIAN BOMBERS FOR R.A.F. UNLIKELY

Reports Not Countenanced In Official Quarters

London, June 3. Persistent reports that Italian aircraft manufacturers were offering through British commercial channels to supply warplanes to the Royal Air Force so far have not received countenance in official quarters, either in Rome or London.

It is alleged that offers mainly concern Caproni twin-engined bombers. Commendatore Caproni, who frequently visits London, is coming again next week.

Interviewed by Reuters Rome Correspondent, the famous Italian aircraft designer and manufacturer said he knew nothing of the reports. "If we can sell aeroplane engines to Great Britain, we will certainly do so," he added.

Strategical and political implications of the scheme, however, are not overlooked, and any transaction will require careful review by Signor Mussolini and the British Air Ministry.—Reuter.

A close-up picture of the 6 ft. 3 in. shark caught by Mr. K. C. Wong at Shaikwan last Sunday. Mr. Wong, an enthusiastic amateur angler, used a No. 20 gut line and a four inch hook with life fish for a bait to make this huge catch.

ANHWEI AND HONAN BATTLES RAGING

JAPANESE RAPIDLY PUSH WEST

Claim Huge Chinese

INVADERS' CASUALTIES
ADMITTEDLY HIGH

Liuan, Anhwei, June 3.

In addition to the column driving from Pohsien to Hui on the Honan-Anhwei border, two Japanese columns in north Anhwei are pushing in the direction of north Honan.

One column is striking south from Mengcheng on north bank of the Kwo River, 45 miles north-west of Pongpu, while the other column is west from Tingyuan, 3 miles west of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway in north Anhwei.

Fighting has already broken out between the Mengcheng column and Chinese defenders at Lochiachi, north of Yangtai. Numbering about 2,000 men, the Japanese are assisted by tanks and artillery.

The column advancing westward from Tingyuan is divided into two. Chinese troops have rushed to block their drive. The Japanese despatches state the Japanese resorted to gas in the vicinity of Tingyuan on June 1. Many Chinese soldiers killed. Meanwhile, on the Hsueh sector, the Chinese attackers are reported to have reached the outskirts of the city where fighting is in progress.—Central News.

Serious Threat To Kaifeng

Hankow, June 3.
A serious threat to Kaifeng is developing as a result of the Japanese flanking movement near Hsien, according to latest reports from the front. Instead of driving westward along the Lunghai Railway, possession of Lunghai, the Chinese are said to be advancing from Kweichow and Yungchen and then on Hsien and Luyi. One Japanese column driving west from Lingling is reported to have reached Hsien.

It is believed the Japanese are planning to strike the Peking-Hankow Railway in the vicinity of Yehchen, north of Chengchow.

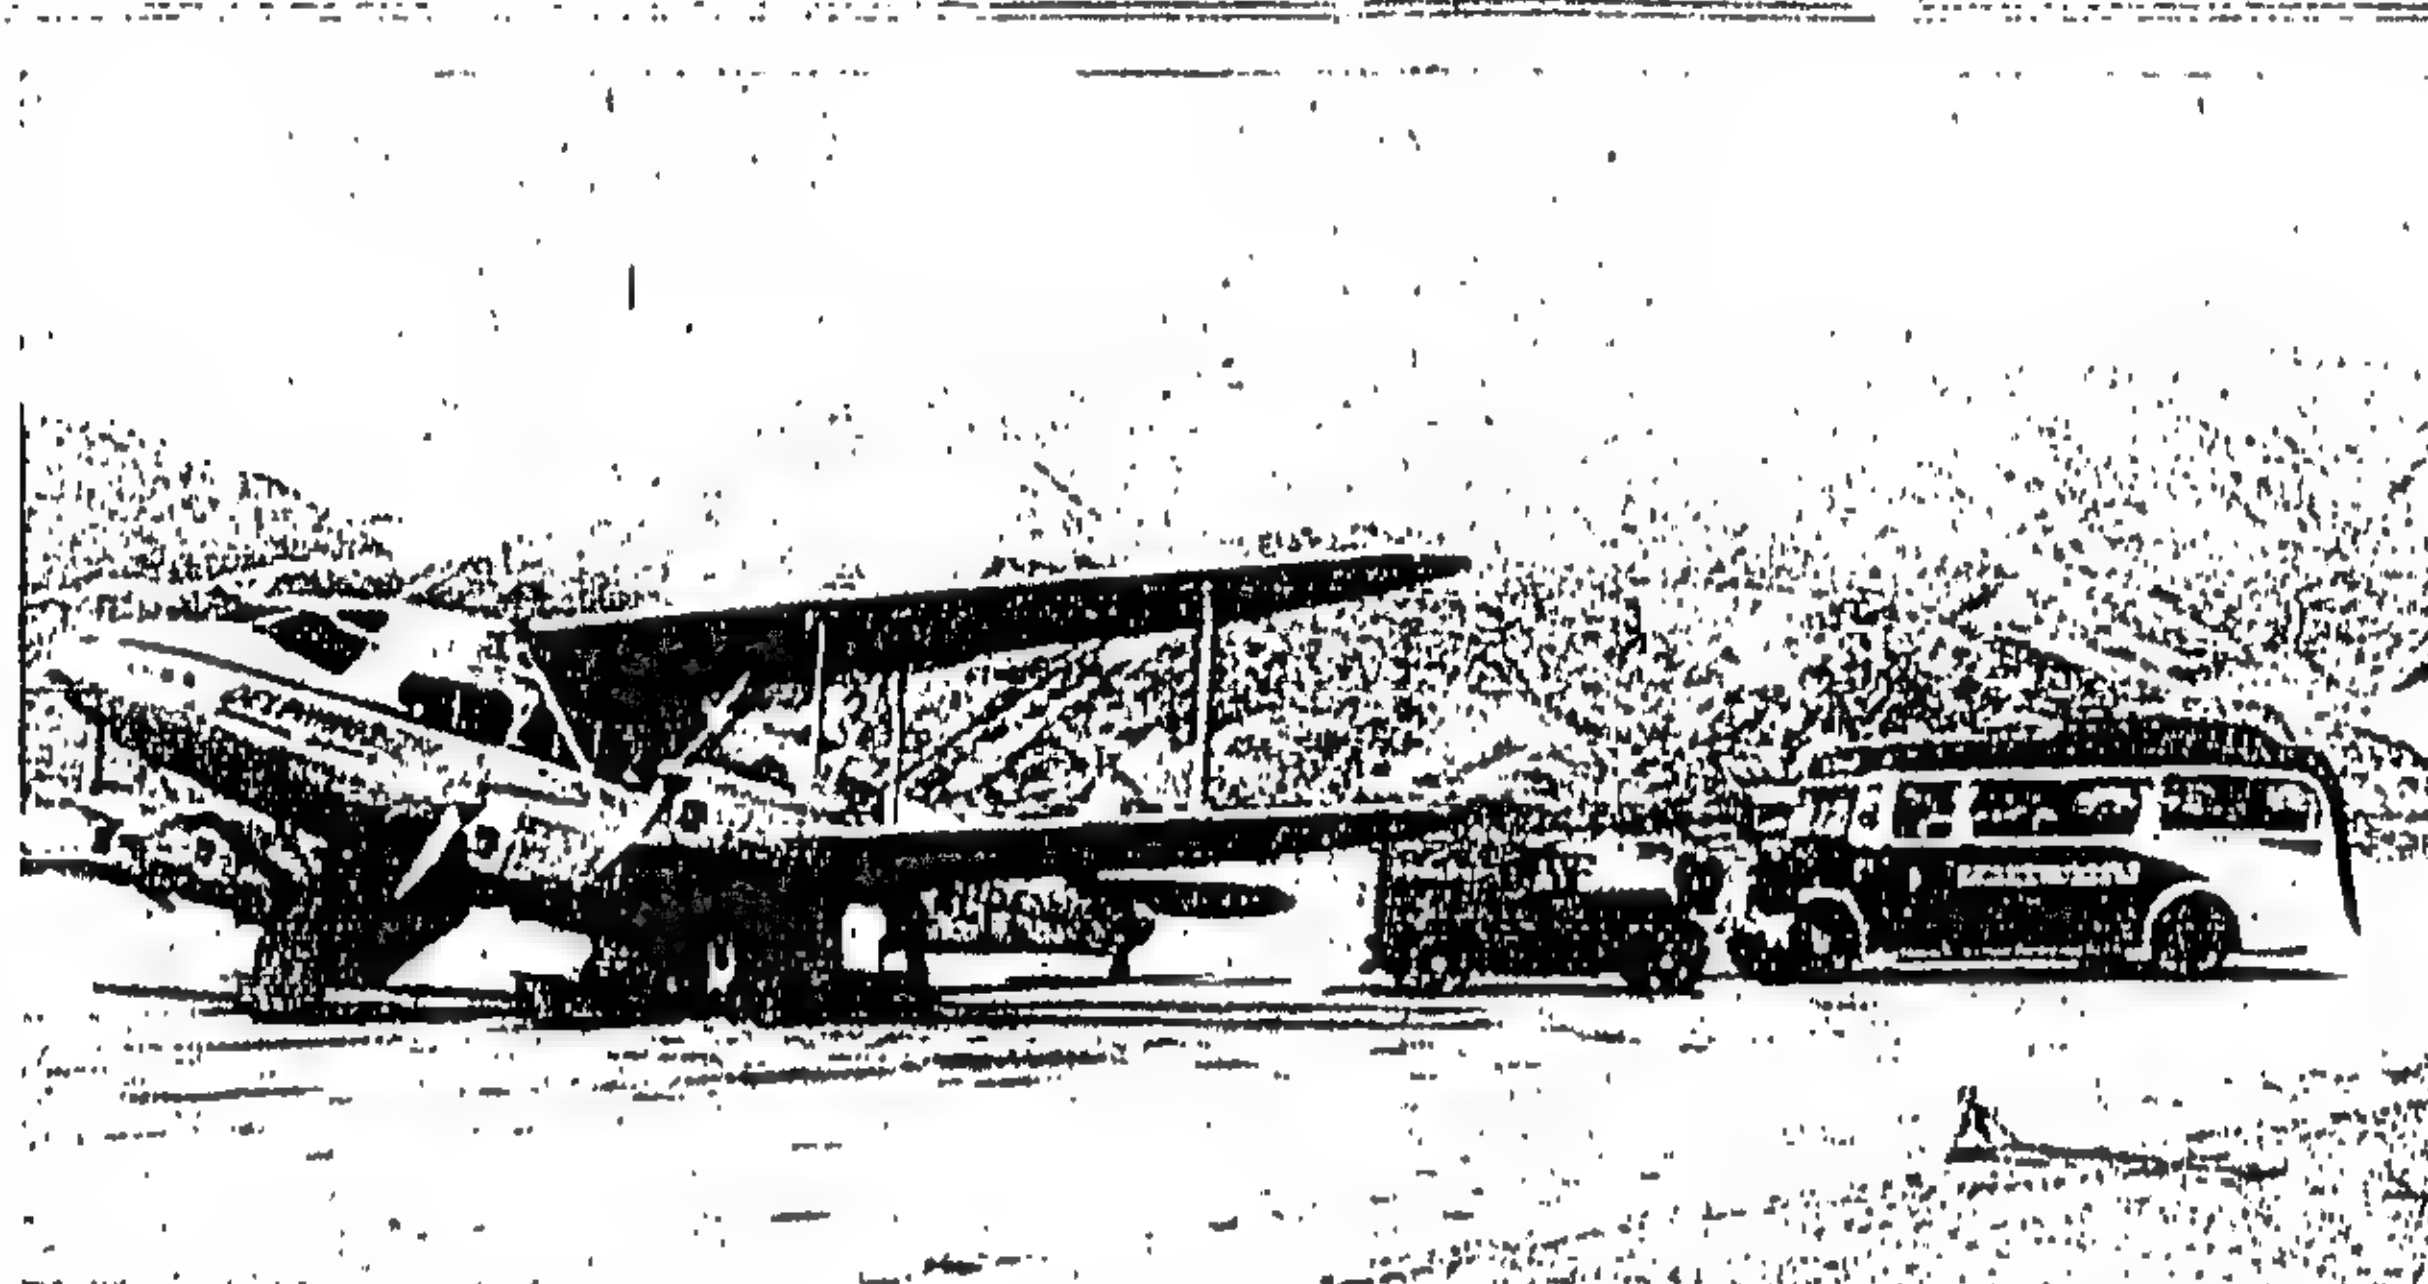

The Chinese are preparing to check any advance and at the same time to defend the Hankow area in the event of a push in that direction.

Amoy, June 3.
Chinese forces on the mainland at Amoy opened fire against the Japanese at 1 o'clock on Tuesday morning. They were silenced by effective Japanese counter-bombardment. It was admitted here to-day.
The Japanese base at Otiao, 4,000 feet distant across the water from Amoy Island, the Chinese fired three shots which fell short of the island, the report said.
While at Otiao, the Chinese are now building pill-boxes and are waiting for a chance to capture the island, according to claims.—Domei.

CHINESE VICTORY CONFIRMED

Japanese Raiders Severely Punished
In Hankow Fight

Shanghai, June 4.

Under the heading "Japanese Air Raid Losses Confirmed," the North China Daily News says this morning that foreign reports confirm previous messages regarding the Japanese air raid over Hankow on Tuesday.

Twenty-one Japanese planes took part in the raid, most of them being pursuit planes.

They were opposed by about 40 Chinese planes. The Japanese lost twelve pursuit planes, shot down over Hankow, and two bombers shot down whilst attempting to bomb the boom across the Yangtze at Kiang.

None of the bombers participating in the raid succeeded in reaching Hankow, all of them being intercepted by the speedier Chinese pursuit planes.

The Chinese lost only two machines in the encounter, it is confirmed. Under this report, the North China Daily News publishes the story from Tokyo, quoting a Navy spokesman as saying that in the raid nine Japanese raiders engaged over 50 Chinese planes, shooting down 20. The same Japanese report states that all but one Japanese plane returned safely to their base.—Reuter.

Underground Deaths Caused By Negligence

London, June 3.
The inquest on the six victims of the underground railway collision on May 17 was concluded to-day, when the Coroner's Court returned a verdict that all had met their death through an accident caused by the negligence of George George Eber, Chief Linesman, and the contributory negligence of Arthur Walter Foskew, Foreman at Temple Station.

In neither case, added the rider to the verdict, did the negligence amount to criminal negligence. A mistake was made by the man who did the wiring before the accident, and it amounted only to an error of judgment.

The jury highly commended the courage and presence of mind of the driver of the stationary train involved in the accident, and expressed its deepest sympathy to relatives of the bereaved.—Reuter.

REFUGEE CENTRE MAY BE BUILT BY H.K. CHINESE

Private Chinese persons are pressing for the early establishment of a refugee settlement in the Colony and, though official participation in the scheme is still lacking, it is known that sites have been inspected in Kowloon by Directors of the Chinese hospitals.

Mr. Chau Shiu-ng, Chairman of the Directors of the Tung Wah Hospital, stated that he had been with the Hon. Dr. P. S. Selwyn-Clarke to several places on the mainland to see whether it was feasible to erect matsheds and huts for the poorer refugees.

Government is apparently reluctant to father the scheme because of the complications that it involves but the Chinese themselves are expected to proceed with the building of huts for the accommodation of women, children and infirm males if a site can be secured. The only sites available are on Crown land. Apart from the political aspects of such a scheme, it would involve quite considerable expense. Sanitation would have to be sound and a no less serious point is that it would probably swell the tide of refugees coming here if they knew that provision had been made for them.

Terrible Living Conditions

One authority stated that Government would be forced to come into the scheme for its own protection since the poorer residential area is becoming intolerably dangerous to the health of the community. There are whole floors without any sanitation and some where the only convenience is a temporary one placed in the kitchen. The spaces underneath stairways are all used as bed spaces.

Godowns and warehouses have been thrown open to homeless persons at the request of the Chinese hospital authorities but there still remains a very urgent need for organised accommodation. Another case of cholera reported this morning has added to the fears of the medical department which is adopting extraordinary precautions to safeguard the large number of evacuees in the old Government Civil Hospital.

Refugees Held Up

About one hundred refugees who could not produce twenty dollars as required by the new regulation in Hongkong, were detained yesterday afternoon when the steamers Tai Shan, Kwong Sai, Tin Yat and Sai On arrived here from Canton.

The total number of refugees aboard the four ships was approximately 5,000.

The detained refugees in the meantime are in police custody. The number of refugees in various refugee camps at present is:

Tung Wah Hospital, 320, of which 100 came from Shanghai; Old Victoria Gaol, 508; Government Civil Hospital, 1,402.
The former magistracy in Kowloon was opened for refugees yesterday as a number of one hundred refugees from the Government Civil Hospital was transferred there.

Cholera Victim Found Near Refugee Centre

A case of cholera was found at Third Street to-day near the large refugee settlement in the old Government Civil Hospital.
The patient died shortly after being taken to hospital.
He was a male adult but whether a refugee or resident is not yet known.

EXPLORER FLYING PACIFIC

On Expedition To New Guinea

San Diego, June 3.
The world's largest private flying boat, owned by Richard Archbold, famous American explorer, set off from San Diego for Honolulu at 2.44 p.m. to-day.

Archbold is en route to New Guinea, off the north coast of Queensland, where he will spend two years on zoological research for the American Museum of Natural History.

His flight will cover 6,500 miles across the sea, and he will pass over the spot in the Pacific where Amelia Earhart disappeared in June last year on her world flight.

The giant Consolidated Airboat, which cost U.S. $250,000, is being piloted by Russ Rogers and Ray Born. Included in the crew are Gerald Brown, radio-operator; Stephen Baranka, mechanic; and Capt. Lewis Yancey, navigator.—United Press.

22-YEAR-OLD SOUTH AFRICAN DETAINED: GERMAN ALSO HELD

In Chinese Prison Cell As Japanese Air Raiders
Bombed Wongshe District

(By "Telegraph" Special Representative)

Imprisoned in Canton for over a week as a suspected espionage agent, a pretty 22-year-old British girl has just arrived in Hongkong, after her release had been secured by the British Consul General, Mr. A. P. Blunt.

The girl is Miss Kathleen Weston, of Burgville, Natal Province, South Africa. Her home is in a farming district 200 miles inland from Durban.

Karl Rein, a 25-year-old German medical student from Hargen, Westphalia, is still in a Canton prison. Miss Weston and Rein were arrested on the Canton Railway station on May 27, as they were en route from Hankow to Hongkong.

Efforts to secure the release of the German have failed.

In an effort to obtain evidence against the British girl and her travelling companion, Chinese agents raided the rooms in which they had left their baggage in Hongkong whilst they were in the interior of China.

Mme. Chiang Tells Of Women's Work

Interviewed By Daughter Of Press Magnate

Miss Jane Howard, daughter of the President of the United Press Association and of the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, has just returned to Hongkong from Hankow, after interviewing Madame Chiang Kai-shek there for her newspaper in Honolulu.

Miss Howard gave her story to the Telegraph to-day after flying the Pacific and onto Hankow on a special assignment.

She wanted to know, first, whether the people of the outlying districts of China had been aroused by the Japanese invasion and its attendant horrors to which civilians were so frequently exposed.

Said Madame Chiang:
"At first the people away from the coast districts in China were not aware of the horrors of the war and not all the people wanted to fight; but now everyone is united. The people have learned through education and through seeing the refugees. All women, high and low, are making things for the soldiers. China was already on her way to unity before the Japanese attacked her. The chief impediment to her unification has been the subversive work of the Japanese but the war has crystallised this unity."

"The work of our women's organizations is aimed directly at the problem of unity. Work done during the war is only the beginning; for rehabilitation work is equally important. If, when the war is over, China has not achieved unity through her sufferings she deserves to be doomed."

WOMEN'S DUTY

"The women who attended the recent Kuling conference were the leading intellectuals among the women of China. They were chosen because of their own merits and not because of the importance of their husbands. The purpose in calling them together was to give them a chance to get acquainted and to prepare a programme for all the women of China. If all of China's women (Continued on Page 4.)

The baggage was surreptitiously taken to Canton. Miss Weston's efforts to secure the release of her property have so far been unavailing. She dare not go to Canton to make enquiries, for fear she should be re-arrested.

When I interviewed Miss Weston in Kowloon this morning, she told a remarkable story of her experiences. After she was arrested, she was taken into a small cell in a native Chinese prison near Wongshe. Her travelling companion was placed in another cell in the same prison.

On Saturday, the day after they were arrested, the Japanese planes carried out the first of the series of bombings of Canton.

"They were attempting to hit some objective near the prison, and the (Continued on Page 4.)

Check up on your New Suitings

CHECKS, which came in with a rush at the beginning of the season, show every sign of carrying us right through the summer and beyond.

Beach dresses in particular are made more trim and tailored by the clever use of formal checks. Afternoon frocks are made presentable for country and town in the same rather cunning way.

MAIN theme is, I suppose, economy. Because there's no doubt about it that checks are much more economical than rather light posies, garlands, or all the other whimsicalities we like to indulge in. These are the things we have to "live up to," while checks, whether in gingham or washing silk, can be worn and washed to the last thread and still look smart. Not only that, but they don't require our best coiffure, or our most startling make-up.

Take a look at the photograph on the right. Believe it or not, but that is a beach suit. The smart combination of checks and plain fabric, the neat lines of the bolero jacket cleverly disguise it. Dress is in plain wool linen with an invisible zipper back and front. Jacket is in bottle green wool linen lined with the cowboy hat. Jaeger make this outfit.

SERIOUS accessories to link with town or country suitings are also introducing the check motif into their make-up. Somewhere. Either into the backs of gloves—like the ones below—or on handbags, which are sometimes made completely of check tweed or linen, and certainly into the ever-useful scarf.

BELOW.—Checks and spots are both in favour for town gloves this season. Gloves on the left are in white taffeta with navy spots; those on the right are in bright red leather trimmed with a square design in dark leather.

ABOVE.—Gay check linen makes this smart beach frock, worn with a plain bolero jacket in a shade to match. This has revers and lining in the same check as the dress and cowboy hat.

The Perfect Omelette

THE making of a successful omelette is one of the most difficult things in the whole repertoire of cooking—and yet so simple. It is almost a "sleight of hand," and some people can do it and others—even highly skilled in other respects—simply cannot. The rules are simple enough—but the actual making is another matter.

The choice of the pan is important. It should be thick, as an omelette cooks too quickly in a thin frying-pan. It should be sufficiently large, so that the omelette mixture is spread out thinly. A heavy, lumpy omelette is often the result of too small a pan.

An omelette pan should, strictly speaking, never be used for anything else. It should never be washed, but rubbed over with a clean, dry cloth. In this way, the pan is kept slightly oiled and perfectly smooth. The slightest bit of rough surface in a pan may spoil the omelette.

It is preferable not to make an omelette with too many eggs, as it is difficult to mix a quantity of eggs quickly enough. Break the number of eggs required in a basin. Mix with a fork till the yolks and whites are well blended, but avoid beating them to a froth. Never break the eggs till they are about to be used. To every three eggs, allow 1 oz. of butter. Put the butter in the pan and when very hot, pour in the egg mixture, which should be seasoned with salt and pepper. Hold the handle of the pan with the left hand, and a fork in the right. Stir the eggs as quickly as possible, using a circular movement.

AFTER a few seconds, shake the pan continuously, so that the eggs will not stick to it. Then stop stirring for two or three seconds, so that the mixture may get slightly browned, fold the omelette quickly with a fork while still in the pan and serve at once on a hot dish or plate.

An omelette made with four eggs should not be cooked for more than exactly two minutes. A good omelette should have the consistency of scrambled eggs inside and the outside should be just sufficiently set to allow for folding.

Here are some variations on the omelette theme:

FRY or grill some kippers, bone them carefully, and chop. Mix with the omelette mixture in the basin and make the omelette as in preceding recipe.

Fry a few sausages and chop finely two or three of them. Mix with the omelette mixture in the usual way. Just before folding, add the remaining sausages, cut into two or three pieces.

Peel and core two or three dessert apples. Chop them and cook till tender in a little water and sugar. Drain and mix with the omelette.

mixture. Make the omelette, fold, and sprinkle with a little sugar.

Make the omelette in the ordinary way, adding one tablespoonful of sugar to the mixture. Fold and cover with a hot chocolate sauce—made by dissolving 3oz. of plain chocolate with three tablespoonfuls of water. Stir over a slow fire till quite smooth and very thick.

French Meringues

INGREDIENTS: 2 cups crystal sugar, 1 cup water, 5 egg whites, ½ teaspoon vanilla essence, ½ teaspoon lemon essence.

METHOD: Heat sugar and water in saucepan slowly till dissolved, then boil without stirring till syrup forms a firm ball when tested in cold water. Whisk the egg whites to stiff froth, very gradually add the hot syrup, whisking egg whites constantly. Place pan in basin of ice-water, add flavouring essence and beat for five minutes, then cover with cloth and leave for 15 minutes. Oil and sprinkle a baking tray with corn-flour, shape meringue with a dessertspoon or forcing-bag with tube, and bake slowly for about 40 minutes till firm and dry.

REST for BEAUTY

REST is the best of all beauty aids, yet it is often neglected, probably because it is such simple treatment and costs nothing.

The woman who lives at continual high pressure all through the day, whether occupied with her work or with social gaieties, will soon pay the penalty in early wrinkles, prematurely grey hair, and a tired, haggard appearance.

In addition to eight hours sound sleep at night, every woman past her first youth should try to arrange for an hour's complete rest during the day. The hour after lunch is the ideal time, but if this cannot be managed, the hour preceding the evening meal is almost as good.

As a general rule, the housewife will find the former time more convenient to fit in with her daily routine, the business woman, the latter. Anyone who has been working in a shop or office all day should make a point of lying down for an hour regularly each evening, as soon as she comes in from work. Her health, her looks, and her capacity for work would improve wonderfully.

Relaxation in a Quiet Room

This rest, to be completely efficacious, should be taken alone in a quiet bedroom. To be back in an armchair is not so beneficial at this time.

Take off your frock, and also any constraining wearing apparel, darken the room, and then lie flat on the bed with the head comfortably pillowed, and every muscle of the body relaxed. Close your eyes, and make your mind a blank as far as you possibly can, or at any rate think only of pleasant things.

To lie down and worry over the day's happenings is worse than useless, you will probably get up more tired and brain-fogged than before. You can enjoy lying quietly in this pleasant state of total relaxation, both mentally and physically, at the end of the hour.

Good restful sleep at night is most important. Insomnia is a common complaint in these days of hurry and worry, but nothing ages a woman more rapidly. Pale lined faces, tired dull looking eyes, and a strained, anxious expression, are the inevitable consequences, apart from such disastrous consequences as irritable, unbalanced nerves, continual headaches, and general lassitude.

Early to Bed

Every woman should try to be in bed by eleven at the latest. One hour's sleep before midnight is worth two after, and is one of the best of all beauty aids.

The slightest tendency to insomnia should be warded off at once before it has time to develop into a habit. A heavy meal late at night is a frequent cause of sleeplessness, so is an ill-ventilated room, an uncomfortable bed, or being too hot or too cold, but the most important thing of all is to compose the mind.

Countless women sleep badly because they take their domestic or business worries to bed with them, and these always appear far worse during the dark hours of the night than they actually are.

Some people find that a glass of hot milk, sipped slowly, or a warm but not hot bath just before getting into bed, will help them to sleep. If, after lying awake for some time, sleep does not come, an excellent plan is to pace the room for a few minutes. Getting back into a warm bed when just slightly chilled has a wonderfully soporific effect.

Sleeping drugs, above all things, should be avoided, so if the simple remedies already mentioned are of no avail, a doctor should be consulted.

QUICK RECOVERY AFTER ILLNESS

Very often a period of convalescence is much more critical than the actual illness that preceded it. Your whole body is left in a state of complete exhaustion. You have no strength to combat any renewed attacks.

Doctors and nurses realize the importance of a speedy recovery after illness. In Horlicks they have found a highly nourishing food that can be easily digested when all other foods cause nausea.

Horlicks rebuilds your exhausted body. Convalescence is shortened. You feel full of vigour and vitality. Always keep Horlicks ready at hand.

In these difficult times of anxiety and worry, the task of carrying on and doing work which must be done is a doubly difficult one which must tend to exhaust one's nervous energy.

Horlicks builds up strength, vitality and prevents that listlessness and tiredness caused by constant nervous strain. H. M. Hodges, Kowloon Building, Queen's Road, Hongkong.

R.M.A. Dorado Catches Fire Before Take-Off

PASSENGERS, CREW AND MAILS SAFE

One Man Breaks Leg Leaping to Safety

R.M.A. Dorado, the Imperial Airways' big airliner which inaugurated the mail and passenger service for this line out of Hongkong, met with her first accident of any gravity to-day. Actually the plane was only slightly damaged, according to a statement by Imperial Airways, but the five persons in her passenger cabin and her crew had a narrow escape from death.

Fire enveloped the plane suddenly as the engines were started up preparatory to the take-off.

Five people were in the plane and, surrounded by flames, had to crawl through the emergency trap-door in the roof to reach safety.

They were:

Mr. W. K. Leonard of St. Paul, Mr. F. M. Watts, Manager of Imperial Airways in Hongkong, Mr. W. A. Cash, Second Pilot, C. Chan, Imperial Airways employee, and Ah Lo, Imperial Airways employee.

Ah Lo sustained a broken leg in jumping from the wing of the Dorado, and has been taken to Kowloon Hospital.

Mr. Leonard, an American, was the only passenger in the machine.

He had just taken his seat when a sheet of flame burst from the rear port engine. Within a few seconds the flames, fed by petrol, were shooting right across the plane, and they made exit through the cabin doorway impossible.

Leads Way To Safety

Mr. Watts led the way to the emergency trap-door in the roof of the machine, situated above the pilot's cockpit and the five men climbed through this exit. When the five men reached the roof of the machine they had to clamber down, through almost unbearable heat, in the upper wing before they could leave the machine. They had to run to the tip of the wing in jumping to the ground. Ah Lo sustained a fractured leg.

Swift Efficiency

That there was not a more tragic sequel to the outbreak was due, firstly, to the remarkable coolness displayed by everyone concerned and, secondly, to the promptness with which the Kai Tak Airport fire engine was on the scene.

Within a few seconds the fire engine, which always has its motor running as planes arrive or depart, was beside the Dorado, and foam extinguishers and water were being played on the flames.

They were subdued within a few minutes.

SHIPS IN RADIO COMMUNICATION

The following ships are expected to be in wireless communication with Hongkong Radio to-day: Sinkiang, Ping Wo, Siang Wo, Wuchang, Choksang, Empress of Asia, Gneisenau, Kumsung, Empress of Japan, Conte Rosso, Suisun, Shuntien, President Pierce, Nippon, Mirapora, Patroclus, Kingyan, Anshun, Hoang, Yochow.

All Mails Safe

Air mail for England was not damaged by the flames but the containers were soaked by water played onto the machine by the fire engine, and a few letters were slightly damaged through this cause.

The mails were immediately conveyed back to the General Post Office, where the bags were re-opened and dampened letters were laid out to dry. Postal officials state that no addresses were rendered illegible, and all mail will reach its destination. There was no mail for Australia and New Zealand aboard the plane. This, together with the mail that was to have gone forward this morning, will be despatched by the Dredalus, which arrives from Bangkok to-night, and will leave to-morrow morning. Mails for Australia and the United Kingdom will close at the G.P.O. and K.P.O. at 5 p.m. to-day.

Mr. W. A. Cash, the First Officer, was in the pilot's cabin when the ship caught fire. It was his duty to start and warm the engines before the Senior Pilot, Captain L. J. White, took over the controls to take-off.

Another passenger, a German named Dr. Probst, was standing beside the door of the Dorado, waiting to enter, when the fire started. The only other passenger who had also not entered the machine was Mr. R. M. C. Dolbe, of the Hongkong office of Imperial Airways, who was leaving on transfer to Bangkok.

Imperial Airways Statement

The following statement was issued to the Hongkong Telegraph by Imperial Airways:

"Imperial Airways advises that R.M.A. Dorado was slightly damaged by fire whilst the engines were being started preparatory to her departure for Bangkok at 6 a.m. to-day.

"Passengers and crew were unhurt and no damage was suffered by the mail or freight.

"The service is expected to resume at 6 a.m. to-morrow."

DOIHARA DIVISION AT LAST RELIEVED

Chinese Stoutly Resist Westward Drive Of Japanese Troops

Hankow, June 3.

Although the Japanese are rapidly advancing from Kweichow and Pehsien, south of the Lunghai Railway, on Suhsien and Luyi, and have received reinforcements near Lanfeng from northern bank of the Yellow River, fighting in the Lanfeng region continues with undiminished violence, according to Chinese reports.

Chinese Military circles state that the surrender of the Lanfeng region was not being considered for the present, although the planned annihilation of the Doihara Division by the Chinese forces has been prevented by the arrival of fresh Japanese reinforcements. On the other hand, the Chinese initiated new operation in northern Anhwei, west of the Tientsin-Pukow railway. These Chinese attacks are directed to Mengchen, with Hwai-yuan as a further objective, the Chinese, attempting to cut off the rear of communications of the Japanese troops at Luyi and to bar the southern sector of the Tientsin-Pukow railway.

Chinese Claim Advance Checked

Chengchow, June 3. Tension on the Lunghai Railway still prevails as heavy Japanese reinforcements from Kweichow continue to strike westward in an effort to outflank the Chinese at Lanfeng.

After taking Ningling, 30 kilometres west of Kweichow, a Japanese column pushed further westward and reached Shihotai, east of Ming-chuan yesterday morning. It was engaged by two strong units of Chinese troops. In the ensuing battle the Japanese were beaten and retreated southward, leaving some 100 dead and wounded on the battlefield. The Chinese gave pursuit and surrounded them at Hsueh-shai, north-east of Suhsien, 25 kilometres south of Mingchuan.

A Kai-feng report states that the Chinese troops evacuated Suhsien on June 1. The Japanese column pushing from north Anhwei into east Honan, for the purpose of cutting the Peking-Hankow Railway south of Chengchow, has been halted at Yuyi on the east Honan border. The Japanese stormed the south and north city gates yesterday but were repelled by the Chinese defenders. The opposing forces are now pitted against each other in the suburbs. The Chinese are still besieging troops of the Doihara Division at Sanyichai and Chihotai, north-west of Lanfeng.

About 1,000 Japanese troops at Kuanti on the north bank of the Yellow River are reported to have withdrawn northward. The purpose of their move is unknown.

Chinese Reach Linfen

Tungkuang, June 3. Two Chinese columns, from Pehsien and Suhsien, have reached the suburbs of Linfen on the Tatung-Pukow Railway in south Shansi city. One column is only about four miles from the city, where fighting is raging. Meanwhile, at Linshih, north of Linfen the Chinese have defeated the Japanese. They are now pressing towards Fensi, to the southwest of Linshih.—Central News.

WORKERS CONDEMN BOMBING

Chinese Delegates Press For Action At I.L.O. Meeting

Geneva, June 3. Chinese Workers' delegates to the International Labour Office are submitting a resolution expressing deep concern for the sufferings of Chinese workers and their families to the I.L.O. Conference, which opened here to-day.

The resolution asks the Conference to support all organisations which take independent or collective measures to relieve or mitigate the sufferings of Chinese workers.

Mr. F. W. Leggett, the British Government representative, who is Chairman of the governing body, welcomed delegates from 49 countries attending the Conference.

Signor Faleno, the Brazilian Minister for Labour, was unanimously elected President.

Demands Charge For K. Henlein

Prague, June 3. Dr. Vlastislav Křivánek, leader of the National League Party, has entered a formal demand that the Czech State Attorney prosecute Herr Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten Party, for high treason.

The request for an indictment is based on the alleged utterances by Herr Henlein in an interview with G. Ward Price, the famous correspondent of the London Daily Mail, in which Henlein is alleged to have asserted that one of the three alternatives facing the Czech Government regarding the minority question was armed conflict.—United Press.

War Relief Workers Break Hongkong Law

Caution Administered In Kowloon Court

"You must understand that money must not be collected for purposes such as these without permission," said Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning.

He was cautioning two war relief workers for making a shop to shop collecting in Shanghai Street without a permit from the Commissioner of Police.

Detective Sergeant J. Forrest said the defendants, Chan Chai-nan, 29, and Heung Yuk, 26-year-old woman, both of whom were in uniform, were members of a bona fide organisation, and gave receipts for all sums collected.

'Peeping Tom' Arrested At G.O.C.'s House

A Chinese who crept up to a window at Major General A. W. Bartholomew's residence at Scandal Point, and luridly gazed in at a private party which was in progress, was brought before Mr. H. R. Butters at the Central Magistrate's court this morning.

Li Shing, the man in question, was charged with trespassing on military property and, after formal evidence was given, was sentenced to a month of imprisonment, in lieu of payment of a fine of $25.

The arrest was effected by an Indian watchman, who kept the man's movements under observation.

When he was arrested Li Shing said: "I saw some people dancing in the house, and stopped to watch them."

Eviction Case Adjourned

At the weekly calling over of cases in the Summary Court, before Mr. Justice Williams this morning, the case for possession of premises was mentioned.

Wong Fat claimed possession of No. 96 Lai-chikok Road, ground floor, from Kai Chan and another, and mesne profits. Notice to quit was given on April 9, expiring on May 13.

Mr. E. S. C. Brooks appeared for plaintiff, and said the premises were let for use as a firm, but whether there was anyone living there or not was not known.

The proprietor of the rented premises appeared in Court, and in answer to his Lordship said the premises were used as an eating house. He claimed that he paid the rent to the rent collector on April 12, and said that the defendant had allowed him to stay provided he paid an increase of $8 monthly in the rent.

The original rent of the premises, said defendant, was $30 per month, and this was subsequently raised to $40, and was now $48 per month.

Mr. Brooks remarked that he had no knowledge of the alleged arrangement, and said he did not think there could have been one, otherwise the writ would not have been taken out, as it was, on May 28.

Defendant declared that there was such an arrangement, or he would not have been permitted to stay on.

His Lordship remarked that as defendant persisted in the attitude, he would give him a chance to prove it, and adjourned the action until June 17, at 11.30 a.m.

Another action for possession brought by Woo Chan Yuet-ping against the Punjab Store, claiming possession of No. 122 Prince Edward Road, ground floor, and mesne profits, was stated to have been settled. It had been adjourned from last week.

Mr. S. Ng Quinn appeared for plaintiff, while defendant was represented by Mr. M. A. da Silva.

Lanfeng where 10,000 of General Doharui's troops are surrounded, Japanese have commenced to cross the Yellow River near Kwangsi. Japanese artillery on the north bank is heavily shelling the Chinese on the south bank in order to cover the crossing at Chiniukou.—Reuter.

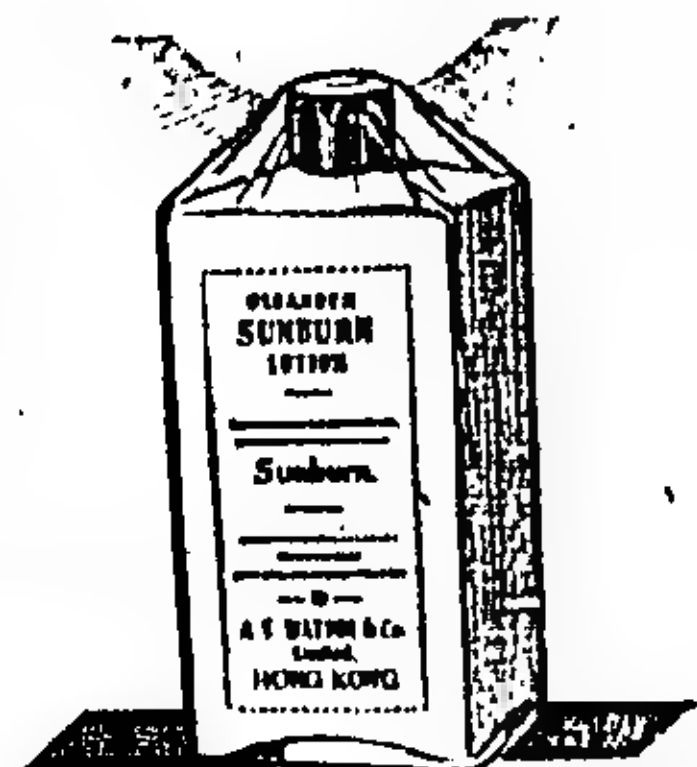

Heavy Chinese Losses

Tokyo, June 3. Chinese attempts to envelope the Japanese near Lanfeng have been frustrated, with the result that the Chinese forces have been in full retreat westward since early Thursday morning, according to information from the front. It is added that 15 divisions of Chinese troops, about 200,000 strong, attempted to encircle the Japanese near Lanfeng, three divisions, namely, Koocheng, in the north, Kihsten and Chenliu in the south, and Kaifeng in the west.

These counter-attacks have been repulsed, the report states, and Chinese casualties are very heavy. Japanese air reconnaissance reports large Chinese forces in retreat westwards from the area south of the Yellow River, Chenliu, 25 kilometres south-east of Kaifeng, and the area west of Kihsten, which is south of Lanfeng, while several trains loaded with field guns were seen moving westwards from Kaifeng.

The Chinese defeat is attributed to the swift westward push of the strong body of Japanese, threatening as it does the early capture of Chenliu. Chinese forces south of the Langhai Railway are fleeing westwards, but those north of the Langhai Railway especially at Sunyi, nine kilometres north-west of Lanfeng, are being bettered by fresh troops, are still sticking to their positions.

FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1938.

TWENTY DOLLAR PASSPORTS

A Chinese from a war-stricken town of the coast or interior, where Japanese bombers or sea raiders have very considerably reduced the expectation of life and made all business a precarious sort of game, must have twenty dollars in his pocket or he will not be received here. Officially he is not a refugee. This is the effect of instructions issued by the Hongkong authorities to the police and disclosed to the Telegraph on Tuesday. The police are watching ships and trains and preventing Chinese without this unusual form of passport entering the Colony. Those who lack it are simply to be shipped back to the places whence they came—unless, of course, some friend or relative comes forward and takes the responsibility of providing for them. Just why the Government fixed upon $20 has not been disclosed. Presumably it is felt that that sum would provide food and lodging of a sort for a month and by that time the emergency in China might be over. Vain hope. The Government, with all respect, should not be planning a month ahead, but for a year at least in this connection. There are a good many thousands of Chinese with $20 and there is simply no room for them here under present conditions. If they continue coming in their thousands all the anti-eviction legislation and rent control schemes that can be conceived will not make Hongkong any more comfortable residentially. There are three ways at least of tackling this problem. The first, as the Telegraph has frequently suggested, is to establish refugee centres in the New Territories, possibly with the assistance of organised charities; the second is to close the frontier altogether; the third might well be in the direction of an international appeal to Japan to respect certain refugee areas in and about all Chinese cities, which would be marked suitably so that aircraft would not attack them mistakenly. These could be supervised with foreign assistance and probably would receive medical and financial aid from abroad. If, as the Japanese appear to intend, Canton is to continue to be a target for bombing fleets, the population must make up its mind either to risk death and remain, or find some suitable and secure sanctuary near at hand. At present Hong-

MICHAEL KILLANIN

UNLIKE the little nigger boys, the number of women M.P.s increases, and now there are 12. After the general election nine women were returned to Parliament, but with the victory of the Socialist, Dr. Sumnerskill, who took her seat in the House recently, women have won three by-elections since 1935.

It was in October 1918 that Mr. Herbert Samuel (now Lord Samuel) moved the resolution in the House that it was desirable to make it legal for women to be members of Parliament, and that resolution was passed by 274 votes to 25.

I have spent hours trying to discover what exactly our women M.P.s had done. I found that they had talked—and talked in many cases with authority—on every conceivable subject. But, honestly, I could not trace one major Act that had been passed of which the women can rightly call themselves the prime movers.

Lady Astor, who was the first woman M.P. to take her seat in the House, and has represented the Sutton Division of Plymouth since 1919, is still the foremost woman member. [Actually a Sinn Féin woman, Countess Markievicz, had been previously elected, but did not go to the House.]

Lady Astor has become a hostess for the Conservative Party, entertaining at her London house in St. James's and her riverside home at Cliveden.

She is always neatly dressed in a black tailor-made suit with a white collar, which shows up against the drab clothes worn by the men of the House.

She is the most talkative member, keeping up a continual conversation with Opposition members, such as Communist William Gallacher and Independent Labour Maxton. Her usual comment is, "Go to Russia." Perhaps after the events of last week she will be more careful about telling members to go to foreign countries.

Flies Her Own 'Plane

THERE sits nearest to Lady Astor Mrs. C. M. Tate, who now represents the Frome division of Somerset—formerly having been M.P. for Willesden West.

She was born in St. Helena but is no political exile, being now in the thick of the fray. She flies her own aeroplane, is keen on gardening, and seems to talk chiefly on chickens, shops, and servants.

Another woman who attracts attention is Miss Thelma Cazalet, who has represented East Islington since 1931. She previously had considerable L.C.C. experience and is now an alderman of the County of London.

She combines music with sport, being a proficient tennis player, even having partnered her schoolgirl friend Miss Megan Lloyd George—Opposition Liberal M.P. for Anglesey—in tournaments.

When she has papers to read she puts on and takes off her spectacles in the most lawyer-like way. If it assists—I do not think it does—a parliamentary career she is a water diver. So is Geoffrey Shakespeare, M.P. for Norwich, but then he is at the Admiralty.

Miss Cazalet is the only woman who has any official position in this Government.

When She Talks Of War

THE Duchess of Atholl, Unionist member for Kinross and West Perth, and now a back bench, was at one time Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education, and sat on the front bench.

She is no longer in the Government, but is one of its severest critics, being very much an aristocratic rebel. She is tall, thin, dark, with a lean face.

Her pets are at the moment Basque children, but it is terrifying when this quiet woman talks of war, for she will recount the most lurid details in the calmest way for a longer time than almost any other speaker.

The other women National Conservatives are Viscountess Davidson (Hemel Hempstead), Miss Florence Horsburgh (Dundee), and Miss Irene Ward (Walsend-on-Tyne).

Lady Davidson gained her seat in a by-election last year when her husband was raised to peerage. The mother of four children, she is always well dressed, combining her political life with fox-hunting and entertaining.

Miss Florence Horsburgh is the senior member for Dundee. In 1936 she created a precedent by being the first woman to move the reply to the Address from the Throne on the opening of Parliament.

She has attacked Red Biddy, the Scottish methylated spirits concoction which was a menace to the impoverished, and the B.B.C. for attacking the Prime Minister.

She is interested in jute, for Dundee is the home of jute, jam, and journalists. I cannot trace her having been interested in the latter two J.s. She has by far the best voice of the women members.

Miss Irene Ward knows more about coal than any woman, and perhaps more than most M.P.s. Some believe that she is the best type of Conservative woman member, and she does not waste an opportunity to raise the question of coal and miners.

So much for the Conservatives. Now we come to Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of ex-Premier David and brother of Major Gwilym, who together form a kind of independent Liberal Party. Recently, when a bard at an Eisteddfod at Caernarvon, she was called "Megan of the Golden Voice." She uses her voice frequently and often effectively.

Hunger-Marching

THE two Socialist women members are Miss Ellen Wilkinson and Mrs. Agnes Hardie. It will be with them that Dr. Sumnerskill will sit and vote.

Miss Ellen Wilkinson, although the smallest M.P., makes herself heard. She has by far the most biting tongue of any member, and makes slashing accusations against the Government.

She claims to have spoken since she was five, and now, "five feet nothing," she thinks nothing of hunger-marching with unemployed from Jarrow her constituency, to London. There are few things she likes more than careering off to fraternise with down-trodden proletariats on the Continent.

Mrs. Agnes Hardie (Springburn, Glasgow), widow of George Hardie, M.P., and sister-in-law of Keir Hardie, is the opposite. She speaks little and

Stop those Crazy Comedies and Give Us Films We Can Believe In

Says SETON MARGRAVE

DEAR Mrs. Brown,—There will be no film famine this year, next year, any year or ever. I think you can be quite sure about that.

Of course, there has been a lot of talk about a serious shortage of films, but then there always is.

Producers like to talk about it, since that sends up the prices they get for their pictures. Cinema-owners like to talk about it, since that sends producers scurrying to make more pictures, and that sends the prices of pictures down.

So round and round they go, chasing each other, trying to scare each other, and getting nowhere. But you are quite right in believing that the film world is in a dither. It is not exactly in a panic, but, as they say in Hollywood, it has the jitters.

And so it should. In the past few years it has indeed asked for it.

Star-Making

YOU make a grand point when you say film stars are not as likeable as they used to be. That is profoundly true.

And why? Simply because so many splendid stars have been torn away from their personalities by the craze for crazy comedy.

I wish you could have been with me the other day when Samuel Goldwyn was talking about star-making.

Nobody in the world knows more about star-making than Samuel Goldwyn, and this is what he said to me:

"Actors and actresses—I am not interested in finding them. Anybody can be trained to act. I took for personalities. Personalities is something that is given to you by fate. If you do not have it, there is nothing you can do about it."

Coming from Samuel Goldwyn, that is very interesting.

Living Their Parts

AMONG the stars you like best you name: Myrna Loy, Shirley Temple, Gracie Fields, William Powell, George Formby, Errol Flynn.

Have you realised that all these players and others, like Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Sonja Henie, and Deanna Durbin, are always themselves?

They are not so much acting as living their parts, and the actor who does it best is Gary Cooper. You want him to be himself or, as you say, you insist on his being in character.

What films at the moment are so popular that cinemas like the Stoll Picture Theatre are breaking away from their one-week-only policy to run them for two and three weeks?

Just "100 Men and a Girl," with Deanna Durbin, and "The Prisoner of Zenda," with Ronald Colman.

Back To Reality

YOU like Errol Flynn because you associate him with "Captain Blood" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade." You will welcome him in "The Adventures of Robin Hood."

And the film most in demand for reissue to-day is Norma Shearer's "Smilin' Through."

You will recall some years ago the films of shady morals and shallow wit we called sophisticated comedies. Norma Shearer had made several of those films before she came to London.

I told her then that she was throwing away all the good will she had ever earned, and I talked her into making "Smilin' Through." Her making that film was entirely my idea, and it was a good idea even if I say it as I should not.

To-day there are a lot of people in Hollywood I would like to talk to—all those excellent players who are appearing in crazy comedies and making themselves ridiculous. They are destroying their personalities all because they are unable to distinguish between what is real and what is rubbish.

A film industry which publishes the wonder of throwing tomatoes at an opera singer is really throwing tomatoes at itself.

Mrs. Brown, I am sure you would begin to like nearly all film stars again if films would only return to human drama.

There is really no reason for delay in view of the tremendous success of pictures such as "Hurricane," "In Old Chicago," and "A Yank at Oxford."

There will be still less reason when we see films like "Test Pilot," with Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, and Spencer Tracy, or "Marie Antoinette," with Norma Shearer—tales of real men and real women—of romance and reality.

The job of a film is to present the romance of reality. Our film-makers should now remember this: They have been ga-ga long enough.

Britain Works for Armistice in Spain

SIMULTANEOUSLY HOPES TO SETTLE SUDETEN PROBLEM

Progress Made in Scheme To End Civil War; But Sudeten Situation Vague

London, June 3.

Great Britain has won the first important move in efforts to arrange an armistice in the Spanish civil war.

Russia has withdrawn her objections to the British plan for the withdrawal of volunteers and has agreed to accept the method of counting volunteers on both sides, plus a division of these foreign forces into four main categories, as well as the restoration of land and sea control on the Spanish frontier.

It is disclosed that Great Britain intends to work actively to arrange the armistice. In addition to seeking a pacific settlement of the Czech-Sudeten German problem, Britain is leaving nothing undone in her campaign for peace in Spain. Eventual direct and friendly negotiations is her aim.

Germany is reported to be dissatisfied with the work of the Non-Intervention Committee. Mr. Neville Chamberlain is thus planning to extend the scope of the committee's work and to attempt to effect an agreement which will actually terminate the civil war.

To this end it is probable that the British Prime Minister will seek the collaboration of France and Italy. And he will sound out the insurgents' and Loyalists' opinions in the matter of an attempted round-table conference of belligerents, at which a settlement will be attempted.—United Press.

Hitler in Daily Conference

Berlin, June 3.
It is learned that Herr Adolf Hitler is in daily conference with naval and military leaders, including Field Marshal Hermann Goering, General von Brauchitsch and General Wilhelm Keitel, and Rear-Admiral Erich Raeder. Well informed quarters believe the conferences concern Spain.

Reports are circulating in military quarters that a decision of importance will soon be made.

Meanwhile, there is evidence of increased tension in the press attacks on Czechoslovakia, despite the reports in other capitals that this tension has eased.

Reports Of Abuse Of Sudeten Germans

The afternoon papers yesterday gave prominence to a German News Bureau report that four Czech soldiers drove a German citizen and his wife out of bed at the point of the bayonet in the middle of the night, and forced them to give up a swastika flag which flew legally beside the Czech flag. The swastika is not banned in the Sudeten region.

It is added that the soldiers insulted Herr Hitler.

Authorities close to the foreign office insist Germany's only desire is that the minorities problem should be settled soon and peaceably. However, Czech circles say the attitude of the press is calculated to convince Sudeten Germans that union with Germany may be expected eventually.—United Press.

Cost Of Removal

Paris, June 3.
It is announced that the French delegate will propose at Friday's meeting of the sub-committee of the Non-Intervention Committee a plan under which Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy will finance the estimated £600,000 cost of removing volunteers from Spain.

Since the Soviet Government has refused to give financial aid towards the cost of removing volunteers, France is proposing that the remaining four Great Powers should bear the cost.—United Press.

Cut Across Traffic Police Motor-Cycle

Several Europeans On Traffic Charges

For cutting in on a traffic policeman while turning into Kimberley Road from Nathan Road on May 7, F. T. Chambers, 170 Boundary Street, was fined $25 when he pleaded guilty through a representative before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning to a summons for driving a car in a dangerous manner.

Traffic Sergeant A. Bethell said that he was driving a motor cycle combination towards the Star Ferry when Chambers, coming in the opposite direction, cut in front into Kimberley Road. Only through braking hard and swerving was a collision avoided.

SWIMMING CHAMPION FINED

Summoned for carrying a passenger on his motor cycle without a pillion seat Norman Lee, the local swimming champion, was fined $5.

Driving without headlights in Nathan Road at midnight on May 2-3, cost S. E. Edgar, of Holland House $5.

DID NOT REPORT ACCIDENT

P. Tamworth, of the Botanical and Forestry Department, was summoned before Mr. H. R. Butters at the Central Magistracy this morning, and charged with failing to report at the nearest police station after an accident on May 13. He was also charged with driving a car without due care and caution.

Mr. D. B. Evans, appearing on behalf of defendant, pleaded guilty to the first charge and not guilty to the second.

The reason why the accident was not reported, said Mr. Evans, was because a traffic constable on point duty was on the scene after the accident, and after speaking to the injured man, walked away. As his injuries were so slight, and the constable had attached no importance to it, the defendant had thought it unnecessary to make a report.

Traffic Sergeant G. Youe said that the man was knocked down and injured by the defendant near the Helena May Institute in Garden Road on May 13 about 6.45 p.m. His Road on May 13 about 6.45 p.m. He said the man only lost Tuesday, there were still many painful abrasions on his body. The man had been asked to be present in court, but apparently had not been able to attend.

A fine of $10 was inflicted on the first charge, and the second charge against the defendant was dismissed.

LADY PAYS $10

Charged with causing an obstruction with her car by parking in Connaught Road Central near the Sun on May 11, Mrs. P. de Robeck was fined $10 when found guilty of the charge.

MANIACAL CHOPPER ATTACK

Three Chinese Women Sent To Hospital

Three Chinese women are in hospital in Kowloon as the result of a maniacal attack by an assailant armed with a chopper.

The women were attacked at their home in Gresson Street. The alleged assailant, Leung Kwai, has been arrested.

Terrible wounds were inflicted by the man during his attack, in which he struck repeatedly at the heads of his victims.

Shrieks from the women quickly brought police on the scene and Leung Kwai was overpowered.

No reason has been given for the attack.

JAMAICA GOVERNOR SUCCUMBS

Minor Operation Proves Fatal

Kingston, June 3.
Sir Edward Denham, Governor of the Island of Jamaica, who was relieved as Governor of British Guiana in 1934 by Hongkong's present Governor, Sir Geoffrey Northcote, passed away suddenly in Kingston today.

Sir Edward entered hospital yesterday for a minor operation, which was successfully carried out. He took a sudden turn for the worse last night, and died this morning.—Reuter.

Sir Edward Denham has been Governor of Jamaica since 1934, when he was transferred to that Colony after being relieved in British Guiana by Sir Geoffrey Northcote.

He was born in 1876 and educated at Malvern School and Merton College, Oxford at the latter being an exhibitioner and taking the B. A. degree in 1899.

In the same year he entered the Ceylon Civil Service and was appointed an assistant to the Government Agent in the Western Province. After holding various other posts progressively he became, in September, 1903, private secretary to Sir A.

Governor Served With Sir Edward

It is revealed that His Excellency the Governor served for four years under the late Sir Edward Denham in Kenya Colony.

News of the death of the Governor of Jamaica was conveyed to Government House early this morning by the Telegraph.

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Northcote are deeply shocked to hear of the tragic and sudden death of Sir Edward, with whom they were well acquainted. A Government House official told the Telegraph.

Ashmore, who was temporarily in charge of the administration, and he was also made acting secretary to the Agricultural Board.

For a time he acted as a district judge and was then made private secretary to Sir Hugh Clifford when, in 1909, he had charge of the Government. In August 1910, he was appointed superintendent of the census and took place next year and afterwards wrote a book on the subject.

In the next nine years he was successively Principal Assistant to the Colonial Secretary, Government Agent for the Eastern Province, Director of Education, and (during the Great War) Director of Food Production for the island.

Transferred in 1920 to Mauritius, he was Colonial Secretary there until 1923, and for three periods had charge of the Government, being later appointed Colonial Secretary for Kenya.

CONTROVERSY IN KENYA
The controversy in the latter colony caused by the demand of the Indian settlers for equal treatment with the whites had just been settled by a decision of the Imperial Government which, while making concessions to the Indians and Arabs, upheld the white settlers' demand for privileges which would maintain their dominant position and so keep Kenya as a European colony.

During the five years Sir Edward was acting Governor on several occasions and in 1927 was knighted (K.C.B.).

After two years as Governor of Gambia he was appointed early in 1930 Governor of British Guiana, and remained there until 1934, when he was appointed Governor of Jamaica. Labour troubles have been a rife in the latter Colony since the beginning of this year, and only yesterday a cablegram from Sir Edward was read in the House of Commons by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, outlining the situation, which is much improved.

The late Governor is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter.

Lady Denham was before her marriage, Miss Maude Bromhead Butt. Sir Edward was joint author, while serving in Ceylon, of "Rubber in the East".

He was a keen sportsman, and took an active part in field sports in Jamaica.

STIMULUS TO HOLIDAY PLAN

London, June 3.
A further stimulus to the growing movement for giving workers holidays with pay was foreshadowed in the House of Commons today by the Minister for Labour, Mr. Ernest Brown.

The Minister told the House that the Government would move to give the fullest and most practicable effect to the recommendations of the recent Committee that workers should be granted holidays with pay, and legislation would be introduced empowering trade boards and agricultural committees to provide paid holidays, and also to enable the Ministry of Labour machinery to be used in the administration of a holiday scheme.—Reuter.

PONIES TO REST AFTER WHITSUN RACE MEETING

CHIEF INTEREST CENTRED UPON LANTAO H'CAP

FIRST HALF OF SEASON NOW COMES TO AN END

(By "Captain Foster")

Chief interest at the Whitsun Race Meeting (two days of racing) under the auspices of the Hongkong Jockey Club will undoubtedly be centred in the Lantao Handicap for "B" class China ponies, for a big special dollar cash sweep is conducted on this important event.

Attention of racing enthusiasts is drawn to the fact that the first saddling bell to-morrow will be rung at 1.30 p.m., but on Whitsun Monday it will be chimed at 12.30 p.m., as there are two races before 1.15 p.m. The first saddling bell after lunch on Monday will be pealed at 2.30 p.m. sharp.

After the running of the Lantao Handicap, which is the last contest on the second day of the Whitsun Carnival, the Hongkong Jockey Club will close the curtain for the first half season and there will be no more flat racing at Happy Valley until September 24.

It is "old" custom to turn Australian and China ponies out to grass for a short time every summer and it is reliably learned that some owners have already made arrangements for their steeds to spend the holidays at Fanning and Mueno. Mr. E. Moller's Silkylight, the triple crown winner and the pride of Shanghai, is already up north enjoying a good rest. Our ponies have been racing without a break since February last and I am sure it has been monotonous to many of them to see the same cinder track every day for the last six months.

REST DESERVED

There are, however, quite a few owners who have a prejudice against turning out the ponies, owing to the possibility of flies which attack them in the pastures. It will be recalled that Mr. Macgregor's Strathroy did not summer too well last year on account of skin trouble and as a result he was ineligible for the Queensland Autumn Champions. Opinions, of course, differ greatly as regards the wisdom of the proceeding, but at any rate I am of the candid opinion that the ponies certainly deserve and are entitled to some sort of relaxation.

For the last two years the Lantao Handicap has been confined to "D" class China ponies whereas on Whitsun Monday, this event is to be contested among the "B" class China ponies. The alteration in the conditions of the race does not materially affect the field in any way, for it has attracted 13 entries against a ratio of 14 and 15 in comparison with previous years. Instead of a sprint, the run is over a distance from the two mile post, once round and in, and the lucky drawers will have a longer time to see the running of their ponies. The ban of winners on the first day of the Carnival has not been inserted and owners should take note of this. The winner in 1935 was Sylvandale (Mr. B. Proulx) who presented a first prize of $25,897.70 to the drawer of ticket No. 6193 whilst in 1937 the holder of ticket No. 28050 drew Laughing Girl (Mr. H. C. Pih) and received $28,642.08. At a time of writing the sale of tickets on the Lantao Handicap is nearing the 140,000 mark and it will not surprise me to see 150,000 in which case, the first prize is guaranteed over $63,000.

WILL GLADIATOR BE ABLE TO WIN JUNE HANDICAP

Difficult Task Lies Ahead Of Her

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Northcote will be present in time to-morrow for the opening event, the June Handicap for "A" class China ponies over a mile, in which Gladiator is definitely a runner. The bay gelding from Government House ran a smart race in the Mount Gough Handicap over six furlongs on May 7, and had an easy passage. It was a great pity that Lady Northcote was not here to see her pony win by two and a half lengths. To-morrow Gladiator is at the bottom of the assessment and I doubt very much whether Mr. Proulx will be able to draw 140 lbs. However, with the inclusion of such stalwarts as Bear Claw (Mr. D. Black), Cameronian (Mr. Encarnacao), Desert Chief (Mr. Poy) and King's Warden (Mr. S. C. Ling), I am afraid that Gladiator will find a tough proposition to reach the home base ahead of these four champion ponies. I have no confirmation, but it has been whispered to me that Bear Claw will not accept on account of the heat and furthermore he is going to have an easy outing in the Whitsun Plate on Monday with no opposition. The conditions of the latter event have barred Cameronian, Desert Chief and King's Warden. In any case I cannot see anything to beat Desert Chief, to be followed by Cameronian and King's Warden.

STRATHROY ABSENT FROM RACE

Lancashire Chips Has Advantage

On the strength of her fine performance at the last meeting, Courtling Eve holds the post of honour in the Bondi Handicap over six furlongs, but no explanation has been offered for the absence of Strathroy among the list of entries. However, both Electron and Lancashire Chips are well in the handicap with only 145 lbs. to shoulder which means a pull of 20 lbs. against Courtling Eve. As I write, the prospect of firm going is bright and it looks that Lancashire Chips will make amends. The present track record of six furlongs is held by Mrs. Taggart's candidate when Lancashire Chips covered the journey in the Canterbury Park Handicap in 1.10% on May 1 last year, and it may interest one to know that Courtling Eve, who was third in the same event, finished five lengths behind and the mare was giving only a pound of lead. Lancashire Chips has certainly the advantage of the weight. Double Finesse, a sister of Courtling Eve, is a good reader over this jaunt and she is dangerous. I am sure we are going to see a fine race.

ELLIOTT TO RIDE SHREW II

LOUIS XIV NOT TO ACCEPT

The Whitsun Handicap for subscription griffin of this Club of this season, due to run on a new event, replacing the Coronation Cup of last year, and it has attracted all the best subs. Louis XIV, the champion pony, has been entered, but it is authoritatively learned that he will not accept for the chestnut gelding belonging to Mr. S. W. Tang is now in Macao chewing grass. Flanchet, after turning the tables on Louis XIV and Smiling Thru in the Tylam Handicap "A" division over a mile on March 12, has not appeared in public and his absence from the course during the early mornings has been very conspicuous. I doubt this dun pony of Mr. F. C. Hall will line up. Smiling Thru (Mr. Encarnacao) has no doubt the best chance to register another win for Mr. E. Tong-sen, but he will have to be at his best to stave off the challenge of Dekko (Mr. Proulx), Desert Star (Mr. Tang), Piet Hein (Mr. Pih) and Salvage Master (Mr. Black). Of this batch, Dekko and Piet Hein are in the pink of condition. The latter's gallop on Wednesday morning was very convincing and Piet Hein is a good bet to have a spare $5 each way.

CUSTOMS HANDICAP (FIRST SECTION)

In the Customs Handicap (first section) for "C" class China ponies, I would like to remind readers not to overlook the fact that Lancashire Lass was officially fourth in the West River Handicap run a fortnight ago on a going which was not much fancied by the mare. The journey too was out of Lancashire Lass' reach, but to-morrow the grey has a special liking for six furlongs and she has my vote for a win. Laughing Girl and Rose-Queen should follow in the rear.

FIRST LEG OF DAILY DOUBLE

The first leg of the daily double is on the Stonecutters Plate for the last line of defence over six furlongs and the event has drawn 27 entries. It is an easy job to see the class rollers. We would have to consider the following ponies such as Cuban Love, Fel Ying, Lucky Eleven and National Dignity, the last being my fancy. Charybdis, I understand, will be ridden by Mr. Encarnacao and it is to be hoped that the pony will not let the public down nor will Yum Sing, the property of the Chairman, with Mr. Poy up. Merry Doer, who won the Governor's Cup at Macao on May 1, will be running against these "C" class ponies and the nag is good for a long shot.

DERBY NIGHT DINNER AT BUCKINGHAM

London, June 2. There was a historic event at the Derby Night dinner held at Buckingham Palace when Evelyn Dail, a 20-year-old American blonde, sang "Nice Work If You Can Get It". Among the audience were Their Majesties, the King and Queen, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr. Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh.—United Press.

A Keen Struggle Anticipated

A keen struggle is anticipated in the Warwick Farm Handicap for Australian subscription griffin of this season that have not won $1,000 or more and the test is from the two mile post, once round and in. The book of forms shows that Lucky Lad is about the best but we have a little regarding A Lovely Time, Cape York and King's Privilege, all having started only twice since February. In course of preparation for the Annual Race Meeting and if my memory serves, King's Privilege was given a fast gallop over the champion course and the bay mare of the Dynasty's stable came out of the test with flying colours, covering one and a quarter miles in 2.31 flat. King's Privilege won a grand race at the Easter season and she may repeat her performance. I may be wrong, but I am of the opinion that Rex belongs to another street and we shall know more of this to-morrow. The Buffer has not much lead to carry, but Boris, Lily and Sydney Bridge are at the bottom of the ladder with only 135 lbs. Of course their chances of presenting their card to the judges are very remote.

SECOND LEG OF DAILY DOUBLE

Easy To Spot Winner In Shantin Handicap

Spotting the second leg of the daily double will not be difficult, for there are, in my estimation, only a few races to be considered in the Shatin Handicap confined to "D" class China ponies over a mile. At the last meeting there were two divisions among the "D" entries, but these two sections have been merged into one and the event is to be ridden by novice jockeys. Election Time, which is at the top of the tree with the limit lead, will be looked after by Mr. Colson and the

Mrs. Moody Beaten By Miss Hardwick

London, June 2. Mrs. Helen Wills Moody was beaten in the fourth round of the St. George's Hill tennis tournament at Weybridge today by Miss Mary Hardwick, the British Wightman Cup player.

After losing the first set easily, Miss Hardwick came back strongly to take the next two. The scores were 1-6, 6-3, 6-3 in favour of Miss Hardwick.—Reuter.

United Press adds that this was Mrs. Moody's first defeat since her "come-back."

Gloucester Collapses After Lunch

O'Reilly Gets In Among The Wickets

London, June 2. After scoring 61 runs for two wickets by lunch-time to-day, Gloucestershire collapsed sensationally in their match against the Australian cricket tourists at Bristol and were all out for 70.

W. J. O'Reilly was almost unplayable after lunch, and finished up with an analysis of six for 22.

At close of play, the Australians had scored 151 for seven wickets. C. L. Badcock was top-scorer with 51. A. L. Hassett had 29. W. A. Brown 18, Chipperfield 9 and Stan McCabe was dismissed for a "duck".—Reuter.

TEST TRIAL

London, June 2. The "Rest" scored 209 in the Test trial at Lord's against an England XI. Verity of Yorkshire was the most successful bowler with four wickets for 71 runs.

The England XI replied with 204 for four wickets. W. J. Edrich, the young Middlesex professional, made 40, followed by Leonard Hutton with 40. W. R. Hammond 29 not out, R. E. S. Wyatt 24 and J. Hardstaff 4 not out.—Reuter.

Next in the allotment of the poundage comes Valorous with 165 lbs. and the old veteran will be ridden by Mr. K. I. P. When these two met in the Talmoshan Handicap (first section) over a mile, Election Time (winner) was in receipt of three pounds from Valorous, who third place, whereas to-morrow Valorous will receive the same weight from Election Time. Taking everything in the balance there should be a dead heat between Election Time and Valorous. Mr. H. E. Zoloth has the choice of either Gold Coin or the stable mate, Gold Sovereign, and judging by the try-outs I have reason to say that he prefers Gold Coin. It looks that the rest of the entries will only make up the field.

HONEYMOON EVE LOOKS GOOD TO BEAT THE FIELD

Despite Penalty Of Six Pounds

In the Lead Mine Handicap for "B" class China ponies over six furlongs, it looks a good thing for Honeymoon Eve to duplicate her success when she had no trouble in winning the Shing Mun Handicap over the same course at the last meeting. For a win of one and a half lengths, Honeymoon Eve has been penalised six pounds but that is nothing to her. There is no doubt that she is a fast lady over short distances and this was proved in the year of her prime when, carrying 161 lbs., she won the Morriston Hill Handicap (six furlongs) in 1.25% on April 3, 1936. This was certainly a marvelous performance for a griffin. Honeymoon Eve, another stable companion, is also dangerous and the best is to have your money on Mr. Pih's mount. Boodle the going is sloppy. A keen tussle is assured.

LAST EVENT

Large Field Will Probably Start

I expect all the ponies will accept the last event, the Customs Handicap (second section) and the journey is over six furlongs. Soldier of China is looking extremely well and it is about time for him to cross over the line ahead of the pack. Laughing Buddha is very good for short sprint and so is Royal Highness.

My final selections will appear on to-morrow's text and election will

A Great Pity That Wyatt Cannot Play In Tests

AS was expected after he had been asked to lead the England XI against the "Rest" in the Test trial which is being held at Lord's for the purpose of choosing the men to play against the Australians, Walter Hammond, the Gloucester and England cricketer who turned amateur at the end of the last cricket season at Home, has been invited by the M.C.C. to lead the team in the first Test which commences at Nottingham on June 10. He is the logical choice for not only is he fully qualified for the job—he has led the Players against the Gentlemen on several occasions—but at the moment he is one of the very few amateurs who are worth their places in an England Test for their batting. The idol of Gloucestershire has always been popular with the crowd, but whether he will be equally as popular with his

Grimmett's Ideal Team

Four Englishmen—Hobbs, Hammond, Larwood, and Tate—are included in the ideal team chosen by C. V. Grimmett, from players whom he has seen play.

Continuing his memoirs in the Melbourne Herald, Grimmett submits the following team:—

J. B. Hobbs (England), W. R. Hammond (England), W. Bardsley (Australia), D. G. Bradman (Australia), W. W. Armstrong (Australia), J. M. Gregory (Australia), H. B. Cameron (South Africa), H. Larwood (England), M. W. Tate (England), and W. J. O'Reilly (Australia).

Grimmett says he would open the bowling with Larwood and Tate, relieve Larwood with Gregory, and follow with Armstrong and O'Reilly. The bowling would be immensely strong, and he would hate to bowl at the batsmen.

It is noteworthy that Grimmett includes the late Horace Cameron in preference to W. A. Oldfield.

Wally Hammond To lead England against the Australians.

BRITAIN CONCEDED A CHANCE

In Walker Cup Golf Contest

London, June 2. Britain has been conceded a splendid chance of winning the Walker Cup golf contest against the United States for the first time, although the Americans are 6-4 on favourites.

However, the betting is likely to swing in favour of Britain if to-day's north-easterly gale continues.

FOOTBALL STAR COMING EAST

Clem Hill's Opinion

CONTRARY to general Australian opinion, Clem Hill, the former Australian Test captain, gives England an equal chance of winning the "Ashes" this summer. "The Australians are not as strong as in 1934," he said. "Too much depends on O'Reilly and Fleetwood-Smith. The latter is sometimes a match-winner."

O'Callaghan
Becomes A Wrestler
Seeking Fame In United States

London, May 1.
The only "one-man team" in the world, Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, the hammer thrower, of Ireland, sails for the United States this week to become a professional wrestler. He may also do some boxing.

Dr. Pat won world fame by being entered for the Olympic Games at Ireland's "team" in 1928. He was booked for the wrestling and boxing events, but elected to challenge only for the hammer-throwing title.

He won it, too, with a record throw, and repeated his success in 1932. I am not sure of his age, but as he was an Olympic champion 10 years ago, he cannot be so young to be starting business as a wrestler and boxer, says Geoffrey Simpson.

Nevertheless, as an Irish-born wrestler and with his Olympic background, he is sure to be popular in America. If he makes good, O'Callaghan aims to return to England to towards the end of the year and meet Earl McCready, the British Empire champion, who is trying to re-establish straight catch-as-catch-can. McCready is still busy campaigning against "all-in" wrestling, which he describes as one large racket, but it seems to me that the "all-in" professors are firmly entrenched, and McCready will need help in order to shift them.

12-YEAR SERVICE
IN BRITISH ARMY
NOW OPTIONAL

Anybody who wants to join the British army for 12 years without a break, can now do so as a result of a new Army Order just released. The order provides that as from May 1, men joining the army at Home may sign on with the Colours for 12 years. The same order becomes effective for recruits abroad on August 1 of this year.

Hitherto the usual rule has been for a man to sign on for seven years with the colours and then to complete the rest of his 12 years in reserve. In the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers, however, it is customary to sign on for six years and to serve the remaining six on reserve.

Under the new order, a 12 years stretch with the Colours will be optional for a man joining any department of the army.

ITALIAN BOMBERS FOR R.A.F. UNLIKELY

London, June 3.
Persistent reports that Italian aircraft manufacturers were offering through British commercial channels to supply warplanes to the Royal Air Force so far have not received countenance in official quarters, either in Rome or London.

It is alleged that offers mainly concern Caproni twin-engined bombers. Commandatore Caproni, who frequently visits London, is coming again next week.

Interviewed by Reuters Rome Correspondent, the famous Italian aircraft designer and manufacturer said he knew nothing of the reports. "If we can sell aeroplane engines to Great Britain, we will certainly do so," he added.

Strategical and political implications of the scheme, however, are not overlooked, and any transaction will require careful review by Signor Mussolini and the British Air Ministry.—Reuters.

ANHWEI AND HONAN BATTLES RAGING

JAPANESE RAPIDLY PUSH WEST Claim Huge Chinese Forces In Retreat INVADERS' CASUALTIES ADMITTEDLY HIGH

Luan, Anhwei, June 3.

In addition to the column driving from Pohnien to Luyi on the Honan-Anhwei border, two Japanese columns in north Anhwei are pushing in the direction of east Honan.

One column is striking south from Mengcheng on the north bank of the Kwo River, 45 miles north-west of Pengpu, while the other column is west from Tingyuan, 33 miles west of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway in north Anhwei.

Fighting has already broken out between the Mengcheng column and Chinese defenders at Loehiaehi, north of Fengtai. Numbering about 2,000 men, the Japanese are assisted by tanks and artillery.

The column advancing westward from Tingyuan is divided into two units. Chinese troops have rushed there to block their drive.

It is stated by Chinese despatches that the Japanese resorted to gas attacks in the vicinity of Tingyuan on June 1. Many Chinese soldiers were killed.

Meanwhile, on the Hefei sector, the Chinese attackers are reported to have reached the outskirts of the city where fighting is in progress. —Central News.

Serious Threat To Kaifeng

Hankow, June 3.
A serious threat to Kaifeng is developing as a result of the Japanese flanking movement near Chihshien, according to latest reports from the front. Instead of driving westward along the Lunghai Railway for possession of Lunghai, the Japanese are said to be advancing from Kweichow and Yangtze, and Mengchen on Hihshien and Luyi.

One Japanese column driving west through Lingling is reported to have occupied Chihshien.

It is believed the Japanese are trying to strike the Peking-Hankow railway in the vicinity of Yenchen, south of Chengchow.

The Chinese are preparing to check this advance and at the same time to defend the Hankow area in the event of a push in that direction.

CHINESE GATHERING AT AMOY Hope To Attack Occupying Force

Amoy, June 3.
Chinese forces on the mainland at Amoy opened fire against the Japanese at 1 o'clock on Tuesday morning but were silenced by effective Japanese counter-bombardment. It was admitted here to-day.

From their base at Otiao, 4,000 metres distant across the water from Ngong on Amoy Island, the Chinese essayed three shots which fell short and dropped into the sea, the report stated.

Assembling at Otiao, the Chinese forces are now building pill-box positions and are waiting for a chance to recapture the island, according to Chinese claims. —Domei.

Urge Continued Attacks On Canton, Hankow

Tokyo, June 3.
Mr. Kenzo Adachi, Chairman of the National League, yesterday handed to Lieut. General Gen Sugawara, Minister of War, and to Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, Navy Minister, copies of the resolutions adopted by the minority political party which he represents.

These resolutions urge that relentless attack shall be maintained on Hankow and Canton, "both of which towns are strongly defended Chinese bases as demonstrated by undisputable evidence." —Domei.

Food To Be Stored In Safe Places

London, June 3.
How the co-operation of traders had been enlisted "in" connection with plans for creating reserves of essential commodities was mentioned in the House of Commons to-day by Mr. Oliver Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, when moving the second reading of the Essential Commodities Reserve Bill.

Mr. Stanley said that in some cases, traders would be induced to carry, on behalf of the Government, more than their normal stocks.

He declared that, under the terms of the Bill, the liquidation of stocks cannot be effected without another Act of Parliament defining the manner in which this could be done, and thus prevent large stocks from being thrown on the market and so disorganise ordinary channels of trade. Plans entrusted with the custody of wheat would take it over, when the time came for milling, in order to prevent deterioration and ease the difficulties of storing. Most of the wheat would be stored near the west (Continued on Page 4.)

Shanghai, June 4.
Under the heading "Japanese Air Raid Losses Confirmed," the North China Daily News says this morning that foreign reports confirm previous messages regarding the Japanese air raid over Hankow on Tuesday.

Twenty-one Japanese planes took part in the raid, most of them being pursuit planes. They were opposed by about 40 Chinese planes. The Japanese lost twelve pursuit planes, shot down over Hankow, and two bombers, shot down whilst attempting to bomb the boom across the Yangtze at Kiangning.

None of the bombers participating in the raid succeeded in reaching Hankow, all of them being intercepted by the speedy Chinese pursuit planes. The Chinese lost only two machines in the encounter. It is confirmed under this report, the North China Daily News publishes the story from Tokyo, quoting a Navy spokesman as saying that in the raid nine Japanese planes, shooting down 20. The same Japanese report states that all but one Japanese plane returned safely to their base. —Reuter.

Underground Deaths Caused By Negligence

London, June 3.
The inquest on the six victims of the underground railway collision on May 17 was concluded to-day, when the Coroner's Court returned a verdict that all had met their death through an accident caused by the negligence of Arthur George Euer, Chief Linesman, and the contributory negligence of Arthur Walter Foskew, Foreman at Temple Station.

In neither case, added the rider to the verdict, did the negligence amount to criminal negligence.

A mistake was made by the man who did the wiring before the accident, and it amounted only to an error of judgment.

The jury highly commended the courage and presence of mind of the driver of the stationary train involved in the accident, and expressed its deepest sympathy to relatives of the bereaved. —Reuter.

R.M.A. DORADO CAUGHT FIRE at Kai Tak this morning just before her take-off; but was only slightly damaged. Passengers, crew, mails and freight all escaped injury. This photograph of the Dolphin—sister ship to Dorado—shows how fire from the engines might threaten those in the big plane's cabin.

REFUGEE CENTRE MAY BE BUILT BY H.K. CHINESE

Private Chinese persons are pressing for the early establishment of a refugee settlement in the Colony and, though official participation in the scheme is still lacking, it is known that sites have been inspected in Kowloon by Directors of the Chinese hospitals.

Mr. Chau Shiu-ng, Chairman of the Directors of the Tung Wah Hospital, stated that he had been with the Hon. Dr. P. S. Selwyn-Clarke to several places on the mainland to see whether it was feasible to erect matchsheds and huts for the poorer refugees.

Government is apparently reluctant to father the scheme because of the complications that it involves but the Chinese themselves are expected to proceed with the building of huts for the accommodation of women, children and infirm males if a site can be secured. The only sites available are on Crown land. Apart from the political aspects of such a scheme, it would involve quite considerable expense. Sanitation would have to be found and a no less serious point is that it would probably swell the tide of refugees coming here if they knew that provision had been made for them.

Terrible Living Conditions

One authority stated that Government would be forced to come into the scheme for its own protection since the poorer residential area is becoming intolerably dangerous to the health of the community. There are whole floors without any sanitation and some where the only convenience is a temporary one placed in the kitchen. The spaces underneath stairways are all used as bed spaces.

Godowns and warehouses have been thrown open to homeless persons at the request of the Chinese hospital authorities but there still remains a very urgent need for organised accommodation. Another case of cholera reported this morning has added to the fears of the medical department which is adopting extraordinary precautions to safeguard the large number of evacuees in the old Government Civil Hospital.

Refugees Held Up

About one hundred refugees who could not produce twenty dollars as required by the new regulation in Hongkong were detained yesterday afternoon when the steamers Tai Shan, Kwong Sai, Tin Yat and Sai On arrived here from Canton.

The total number of refugees aboard the four ships was approximately 5,000.

The detained refugees in the meantime are in police custody. The number of refugees in various refugee camps at present is: Tung Wah Hospital, 320, of which 100 came from Shanghai; Old Victoria Gaol, 500; Government Civil Hospital, 1,402.

The former magistracy in Kowloon was opened for refugees yesterday as a number of one hundred refugees from the Government Civil Hospital was transferred there.

Cholera Victim Found Near Refugee Centre

A case of cholera was found at Third Street to-day near the large refugee settlement in the old Government Civil Hospital. The patient died shortly after being taken to hospital. He was a male adult but whether a refugee or resident is not yet known.

EXPLORER FLYING PACIFIC

On Expedition To New Guinea

San Diego, June 3.
The world's largest private flying boat, owned by Richard Archbold, famous American explorer, set off from San Diego for Honolulu at 2.14 p.m. to-day.

Archbold is en route to New Guinea, off the north coast of Queensland, where he will spend two years on zoological research for the American Museum of Natural History.

His flight will cover 6,500 miles across the sea, and he will pass over the spot in the Pacific where Amelia Earhart disappeared in June last year on her world flight.

The giant Consolidated Airboat, which cost U.S. $250,000, is being piloted by Russ Rogers and Ray Born. Included in the crew are Gerald Brown, radio-operator; Stephen Barlinka, mechanic; and Capt. Lewis Yancey, navigator. —United Press.

22-YEAR-OLD SOUTH AFRICAN DETAINED: GERMAN ALSO HELD

In Chinese Prison Cell As Japanese Air Raiders Bombed Wongsha District

(By "Telegraph" Special Representative)

Imprisoned in Canton for over a week as a suspected espionage agent, a pretty 22-year-old British girl has just arrived in Hongkong, after her release had been secured by the British Consul General, Mr. A. P. Blunt.

The girl is Miss Kathleen Weston, of Burgville, Natal Province, South Africa. Her home is in a farming district 200 miles inland from Durban.

Karl Rein, a 25-year-old German medical student from Hagen, Westphalia, is still in a Canton prison. Miss Weston and Rein were arrested on the Canton Railway station on May 27, as they were en route from Hankow to Hongkong.

Efforts to secure the release of the German have failed.

In an effort to obtain evidence against the British girl and her travelling companion, Chinese agents raided the rooms in which they had left their baggage in Hongkong whilst they were in the interior of China.

Mme. Chiang Tells Of Women's Work

Interviewed By Daughter Of Press Magnate

Miss Jane Howard, daughter of the President of the United Press Association and of the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, has just returned to Hongkong from Hankow, after interviewing Madame Chiang Kai-shek there for her newspaper in Honolulu.

Miss Howard gave her story to the Telegraph to-day after flying the Pacific and onto Hankow on a special assignment.

She wanted to know, first, whether the people of the outlying districts of China had been aroused by the Japanese invasion and its attendant horrors to which civilians were so frequently exposed.

Said Madame Chiang: "At first the people away from the coast districts in China were not aware of the horrors of the war and not all the people wanted to fight; but now everyone is united. The people have learned through education and through seeing the refugees. All women, high and low, are making things for the soldiers."

"China was already on her way to unity before the Japanese attacked her. The chief impediment to her unification has been the subversive work of the Japanese but the war has crystallised this unity."

"The work of our women's organisations is aimed directly at the problem of unity. Work done during the war is only the beginning; for rehabilitation work is equally important. If, when the war is over, China has not achieved unity through her sufferings she deserves to be doomed."

WOMEN'S DUTY

"The women who attended the recent Kuling conference were the leading intellectuals among the women of China. They were chosen because of their own merits and not because of the importance of their husbands. The purpose in calling them together was to give them a chance to get acquainted and to prepare a programme for all the women of China. If all of China's women (Continued on Page 4.)

Check up on your New Suitings

CHECKS, which came in with a rush at the beginning of the season, show every sign of carrying us right through the summer and beyond.

Beach dresses in particular are made more trim and tailored by the clever use of formal checks. Afternoon frocks are made presentable for country and town in the same rather cunning way.

MAIN theme is, I suppose, economy. Because there's no doubt about it that checks are much more economical than rather light posies, garlands, or all the other whimsicalities we like to indulge in. Those are the things we have to "live up to," while checks, whether in gingham or washing silk, can be worn and washed to the last thread and still look smart. Not only that, but they don't require our best coiffure, or our most startling make-up.

Take a look at the photograph on the right. Believe it or not, but that is a beach suit. The smart combination of checks and plain fabric, the neat lines of the bolero jacket cleverly disguise it. Dress is in plain, wool linen with an invisible zipper back and front. Jacket is in bottle green wool linen lined with the cowboy hat Jaeger make this outfit.

SERIOUS accessories to link with town or country suitings are also introducing the check motif into their make-up. Somewhere. Either into the backs of gloves—like the ones below—or on handbags, which are sometimes made completely of check tweed or linen, and certainly into the ever-useful scarf.

BELOW—Checks and spots are both in favour for town gloves this season. Gloves on the left are in white taffeta with navy spots; those on the right are in bright red leather trimmed with a square design in dark leather.

ABOVE—Gay check linen makes this smart beach frock, worn with a plain bolero jacket in a shade to match. This has revers and lining in the same check as the dress and cowboy hat.

REST for BEAUTY

REST is the best of all beauty aids, yet it is often neglected, probably because it is such simple treatment and costs nothing.

The woman who lives at continual high pressure all through the day, whether occupied with her work or with social gaieties, will soon pay the penalty in early wrinkles, prematurely grey hair, and a tired, haggard appearance.

In addition to eight hours sound sleep at night, every woman past her first youth should try to arrange for an hour's complete rest during the day. The hour after lunch is the ideal time, but if this cannot be managed, the hour preceding the evening meal is almost as good.

As a general rule, the housewife will find the former time more convenient to fit in with her daily routine. The business woman, the latter. Anyone who has been working in a shop or office all day should make a point of lying down for an hour regularly each evening, as soon as she comes in from work. Her health, her looks, and her capacity for work would improve wonderfully.

Relaxation in a Quiet Room

This rest, to be completely efficacious, should be taken alone in a quiet bedroom. To be back in an armchair is not so beneficial at this time.

Take off your frock, and also any constraining wearing apparel, darken the room, and then lie flat on the bed with the head comfortably pillowed, and every muscle of the body relaxed. Close your eyes, and make your mind a blank as far as you possibly can, or at any rate think only of pleasant things.

To lie down and worry over the day's happenings is worse than useless, you will probably get up more tired and brain-fogged than before. You can enjoy lying quietly in this pleasant state of total relaxation, both mentally and physically, at the end of the hour.

Good restful sleep at night is most important. Insomnia is a common complaint in these days of hurry and worry, but nothing aches a woman more rapidly. Pale lined faces, tired looking eyes, and a strained, anxious expression, are the inevitable consequences, apart from such disastrous consequences as irritable, unbalanced nerves, continual headaches, and general lassitude.

Early to Bed

Every woman should try to be in bed by eleven at the latest. One hour's sleep before midnight is worth two after, and is one of the best of all beauty aids.

The slightest tendency to insomnia should be watched out at once before it has time to develop into a habit. A heavy meal late at night is a frequent cause of sleeplessness, so is an ill-ventilated room, an uncomfortable bed, or being too hot or too cold, but the most important thing of all is to compose the mind.

Countless women sleep badly because they take their domestic or business worries to bed with them, and these always appear far worse during the dark hours of the night than they actually are.

Some people find that a glass of hot milk, sipped slowly, or a warm but not hot bath just before getting into bed, will help them to sleep. If, after lying awake for some time, sleep does not come, an excellent plan is to pace the room for a few minutes. Getting back into a warm bed when just slightly chilled has a wonderfully soporific effect.

Sleeping drugs, above all things, should be avoided, so if the simple remedies already mentioned are of no avail, a doctor should be consulted.

A Trained Nurse

QUICK RECOVERY AFTER ILLNESS

Very often a period of convalescence is much more critical than the actual illness that preceded it. Your whole body is left in a state of complete exhaustion. You have no strength to combat any renewed attacks.

Doctors and nurses realize the importance of a speedy recovery after illness. In Horlicks they have found a highly nourishing food that can be easily digested when all other foods cause nausea.

Horlicks rebuilds your exhausted body. Convalescence is shortened. You feel full of vigour and vitality. Always keep Horlicks ready at hand.

In these difficult times of anxiety and worry, the task of carrying on and doing work which must be done is a doubly difficult one which must tend to exhaust one's nervous energy.

Horlicks builds up strength, vitality and prevents that listlessness and tiredness caused by constant nervous strain. H. M. Hodges, Kowloon Building, Queen's Road, Hongkong.

The Perfect Omelette

THE making of a successful omelette is one of the most difficult things in the whole repertoire of cooking—and yet so simple. It is almost a "sleight of hand," and some people can do it and others—even highly skilled in other respects—simply cannot. The rules are simple enough—but the actual making is another matter.

The choice of the pan is important. It should be thick, as an omelette cooks too quickly in a thin frying-pan. It should be sufficiently large, so that the omelette mixture is spread out thinly. A heavy, lumpy omelette is often the result of too small a pan.

An omelette pan should, strictly speaking, never be used for anything else. It should never be washed, but rubbed over with a clean, dry cloth. In this way, the pan is kept slightly oiled and perfectly smooth. The slightest bit of rough surface in a pan may spoil the omelette.

It is preferable not to make an omelette with too many eggs, as it is difficult to mix a quantity of eggs quickly enough.

Break the number of eggs required in a basin. Mix with a fork till the yolks and whites are well blended, but avoid beating them to a froth. Never break the eggs till they are frying-pan. It should be sufficiently large, so that the omelette mixture is spread out thinly. A heavy, lumpy omelette is often the result of too small a pan.

pepper. Hold the handle of the pan with the left hand, and a fork in the right. Stir the eggs as quickly as possible, using a circular movement.

AFTER a few seconds, shake the pan continuously, so that the eggs will not stick to it. Then stop stirring for two or three seconds, so that the mixture may get slightly brown. Fold the omelette quickly with a fork while still in the pan and serve at once on a hot dish or plate.

An omelette made with four eggs should not be cooked for more than exactly two minutes. A good omelette should have the consistency of scrambled eggs inside and the outside should be just sufficiently set to allow for folding.

Here are some variations on the omelette theme:

FRY or grill some kippers, bone them carefully, and chop. Mix with the omelette mixture in the basin and make the omelette as in preceding recipe.

Fry a few sausages and chop finely two or three of them. Mix with the omelette mixture in the usual way. Just before folding, add the remaining sausages, cut into two or three pieces.

Peel and core two or three dessert apples. Chop them and cook till tender in a little water and sugar. Drain and mix with the omelette.

Mixture. Make the omelette, fold, and sprinkle with a little sugar. Make the omelette in the ordinary way, adding one tablespoonful of sugar to the mixture. Fold and cover with a hot chocolate sauce—made by dissolving 3oz. of plain chocolate with three tablespoonfuls of water. Stir over a slow fire till quite smooth and very thick.

French Meringues

INGREDIENTS: 2 cups crystal sugar, 1 cup water, 5 egg whites, ½ teaspoon vanilla essence, ½ teaspoon lemon essence.

METHOD: Heat sugar and water in saucepan slowly till dissolved, then boil without stirring till syrup forms a firm ball when tested in cold water. Whisk the egg whites to stiff froth, very gradually add the hot syrup, whisking egg whites constantly. Place pan in basin of ice-water, add flavouring essence and beat for five minutes, then cover with cloth and leave for 15 minutes. Oil and sprinkle a baking tray with corn-flour, shape meringue with a desertspoon or forcing bag with tube, and bake slowly for about 40 minutes till firm and dry.

R.M.A. Dorado Catches Fire Before Take-Off

One Man Breaks Leg Leaping to Safety

R.M.A. Dorado, the Imperial Airways' big airliner which inaugurated the mail and passenger service for this line out of Hongkong, met with her first accident of any gravity to-day. Actually the plane was only slightly damaged, according to a statement by Imperial Airways, but the five persons in her passenger cabin and her crew had a narrow escape from death.

Fire enveloped the plane suddenly as the engines were started up preparatory to the take-off.

Five people were in the plane and, surrounded by flames, had to crawl through the emergency trap-door in the roof to reach safety.

They were:

Mr. W. K. Leount, of Shim, Imperial Airways in Hongkong; Mr. E. M. Watts, Manager of Imperial Airways in Hongkong; Mr. W. A. Cash, Second Pilot; C. Chan, Imperial Airways employee; and Ah Lo, Imperial Airways employee.

Ah Lo sustained a broken leg in jumping from the wing of the Dorado, and has been taken to Kowloon Hospital.

Mr. Leount, an American, was the only passenger in the machine.

He had just taken his seat when a sheet of flame burst from the rear port engine. Within a few seconds the flames, fed by petrol, were shooting right across the plane, and they made exit through the cabin doorway impossible.

Leads Way To Safety

Mr. Watts led the way to the emergency trap-door in the roof of the machine, situated above the pilots' cockpit and the five men climbed through this exit. When the five men reached the roof of the machine they had to climb down, through almost unbearable heat, to the upper wing. Before they could leave the machine they had to run to the tip of the wing. In jumping to the ground Ah Lo sustained a fractured leg.

Swift Efficiency

That there was not a more tragic sequel to the outbreak was due, firstly, to the remarkable coolness displayed by everyone concerned and, secondly, to the promptness with which the Ka Tak Airport fire engine was on the scene.

Within a few seconds the fire engine, which always has its motor running as planes arrive or depart, was beside the Dorado, and foam extinguishers and water were being played on the flames.

They were subdued within a few minutes.

SHIPS IN RADIO COMMUNICATION

The following ships are expected to be in wireless communication with Hongkong Radio to-day: Sinking, Ping Wo, Siang Wo, Wuchang, Chukang, Empress of Asia, Gneisenau, Kumsang, Empress of Japan, Conte Rosso, Suisang, Shuntien, President Pierce, Nippon, Mirzapore, Patroclus, Kingyuan, Anshun, Hosang, Yochow.

All Mails Safe

Air mail for England was not damaged by the flames but the containers were soaked by water played onto the machine by the fire engine, and a few letters were slightly damaged through this cause.

The mails were immediately conveyed back to the General Post Office, where the boats were re-opened and dampened letters were laid out to dry. Postal officials state that no addresses were rendered illegible, and all mail will reach its destination.

There was no mail for Australia or New Zealand aboard the plane. This, together with the mail that was to have gone forward this morning, will be despatched by the Daedalus, which arrives from Bangkok to-night, and will leave to-morrow morning. Mails for Australia and the United Kingdom will close at the G.P.O. and K.P.O. at 5 p.m. to-day.

Mr. W. A. Cash, the First Officer, was in the pilot's cabin when the ship caught fire. It was his duty to start and warm the engines before the Senior Pilot, Captain L. J. White, took over the controls to take-off.

Another passenger, a German named Dr. Probst, was standing beside the door of the Dorado, waiting to enter, when the fire started. The only other passenger, who had also not entered the machine, was Mr. R. M. C. Dobbs, of the Hongkong office of Imperial Airways, who was leaving on transfer to Bangkok.

Imperial Airways Statement

The following statement was issued to the Hongkong Telegraph by Imperial Airways:

"Imperial Airways advises that R.M.A. Dorado was slightly damaged by fire whilst the engines were being started preparatory to her departure for Bangkok at 6 a.m. to-day.

"Passengers and crew were unhurt and no damage was suffered by the mail or freight.

"The service is expected to resume at 6 a.m. to-morrow."

DOIHARA DIVISION AT LAST RELIEVED

Hankow, June 3.

Although the Japanese are rapidly advancing from Kweichow and Poshien, south of the Lunghai Railway, on Suhsien and Luyi, and have received reinforcements near Lanfeng from northern bank of the Yellow River, fighting in the Lanfeng region continues with undiminished violence, according to Chinese reports.

Chinese Military circles state that the surrender of the Lanfeng region was not being considered for the present, although the planned annihilation of the Doihara Division by the Chinese forces has been prevented by the arrival of fresh Japanese reinforcements. On the other hand, the Chinese initiated new operation in northern Anhwei, west of the Tientsin-Pukow railway. These Chinese attacks are directed to Mengchen, with Hwaiyuan as a further objective, the Chinese, attempting to cut off the rear of communications of the Japanese troops at Luyi and to bar the southern sector of the Tientsin-Pukow railway.

Chinese Claim Advance Checked

Chengchow, June 3. Tension on the Lunghai Railway still prevails as heavy Japanese reinforcements from Kweichow continue to strike westward in an effort to outflank the Chinese at Lanfeng.

After taking Ningling, 30 kilometres west of Kweichow, a Japanese column pushed further westward and reached Shoholai, east of Ming-chuan yesterday morning. It was engaged by two strong units of Chinese troops. In the ensuing battle the Japanese were beaten and retreated southward, leaving some 100 dead and wounded on the battlefield. The Chinese gave pursuit and surrounded them at Hsuehshai, north-east of Suhsien, 25 kilometres south of Mingchuan.

A Kaifeng report states that the Chinese troops evacuated Suhsien on June 1.

The Japanese column pushing from north Anhwei into east Honan, for the purpose of cutting the Peiping-Hankow Railway south of Chengchow, has been halted at Yuyi on the east Honan border. The Japanese stormed the south and north city gates yesterday but were repelled by the Chinese defenders. The opposing forces are now pitted against each other in the suburbs.

The Chinese are still besieging troops of the Doihara Division at Sanyichai and Chihotian, north-west of Lanfeng.

About 1,000 Japanese troops at Kuntai on the north bank of the Yellow River are reported to have withdrawn northward. The purpose of their move is unknown.—Central News.

Chinese Reach Linfen

Tungkuwan, June 3. Two Chinese columns, from Poshien and Slangling, have reached the suburbs of Linfen on the Tatung-Puchow Railway in south Shansi city. One column is only about four miles from the city, where fighting is raging.

Meanwhile, at Linshih, north of Linfen the Chinese have defeated the Japanese. They are now pressing towards Fensi, to the southwest of Linshih.—Central News.

WORKERS CONDEMN BOMBING

Chinese Delegates Press For Action At I.L.O. Meeting

Geneva, June 3. Chinese Workers' delegates to the International Labour Office are submitting a resolution expressing deep concern for the sufferings of Chinese workers and their families to the I.L.O. Conference, which opened here to-day.

The resolution asks the Conference to support all organisations which take independent or collective measures to relieve or mitigate the sufferings of Chinese workers.

Mr. F. W. Leggett, the British Government representative, who is Chairman of the governing body, welcomed delegates from 40 countries attending the Conference.

Signor Falcao, the Brazilian Minister for Labour, was unanimously elected President.

Workers' delegates, at a private meeting, protested against the bombardment of civilians in China and Spain, and expressed support for Czech Labour organisations in their "struggle for freedom."—Reuter.

bombs were falling all around us," Miss Weston told me. "I was horribly frightened. Through the bars in my cell window I could see the torpedoes dropping from the Japanese plane. Pieces of shrapnel from the Chinese anti-aircraft guns were continuously falling on the roof of the prison."

"One huge bomb exploded with a deafening roar a hundred yards from my cell, and I was almost knocked to the ground by the force of the concussion."

"The raiders flew over us again on Sunday, and the Chinese decided then, after representations by the British Consul General, that I would be safer at Shamshien."

"The British authorities agreed to detain me in Shamshien for a stated period, after which I was to be released unless the Chinese could advance some substantial reason why I should be held."

"At the end of the period, the Chinese informed the British Consul General that they had no evidence against me, and I was released."

"But I was warned to proceed immediately to Hongkong, and not enter Chinese territory again."

"I was two days in the cell in the Chinese prison, which was none too clean, and during this time I was fed on rice and Chinese food. It was a bit nauseating, but I must say that the Chinese treated me kindly, and when I was endangered in the air raids they readily agreed to send me across to Shamshien."

"But Karl was kept in the Chinese prison throughout the raids, and is still there, so far as I know."

"I am fearfully worried about him."

MET AT COLLEGE

"We are actually old friends. We first met at college in Germany and met again quite unexpectedly in Japan."

"We were both travelling on independent sight-seeing tours of the Far East, and decided in Tokyo that it would be fun to travel together to Hankow."

"No objection was raised to either of us going to Hankow, and it was only when we arrived in Canton, that the return trip to Hongkong, that our troubles started."

"I can't imagine why the Chinese should imagine that we are acting as Japanese spies."

"They sent down to Hongkong and quite without my permission, removed my luggage from the home in which I had stored it. Although they took my luggage to Canton, and must have searched it thoroughly, they could not find one bit of evidence to prove that I was other than what I really am—a tourist."

"I can't imagine why they should detain Karl after releasing me. Perhaps it's because he's a man."

"Tall, slim and a brunette, Miss Weston was born 22 years ago on a farm in Natal. She left South Africa in December, because coming to the Far East while there

K. Henlein

Prague, June 3. Dr. Vlastislav Klement, leader of the National League Party, has entered a formal demand that the Czech State Attorney prosecute Herr Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten Party, for high treason.

The request for an indictment is based on the alleged utterances by Herr Henlein in an interview with G. Ward Price, the famous correspondent of the London Daily Mail, in which Henlein is alleged to have asserted that one of the three alternatives facing the minority question was armed conflict.—United Press.

In Kowloon Court

"You must understand that money must not be collected for purposes such as these without permission," said Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning.

He was cautioning two war relief workers for making a shop to sell collecting in Shanghai Street without a permit from the Commissioner of Police.

Detective Sergeant J. Forrest said the defendants, Chai Chai-man, 29, and Hoang Yuk, 26-year-old woman, both of whom were in uniform, were members of a bona fide organisation, and gave receipts for all sums collected.

'Peeping Tom'
Arrested At
G.O.C.'s House

A Chinese who crept up to a window at Major General A. W. Bartholomew's residence at Scandol Point, and furtively gazed in at a privacy which was in progress, was brought before Mr. H. R. Butters at the Central Magistracy this morning.

Li Shing, the man in question, was charged with trespassing on military property and, after formal evidence was given, was sentenced to a month's imprisonment, in lieu of payment of a fine of $25.

The arrest was effected by an Indian watchman, who kept the man's movements under observation. When he saw some people dancing in the house, and stopped to watch them."

Eviction Case Adjourned

At the weekly calling over of cases in the Summary Court before Mr. Justice E. H. Williams this morning, two actions for possession of premises were mentioned.

Wong Pak claimed possession of No. 98 Latchuk Road, ground floor, from Kail Chinn and another, and the case was adjourned to May 13.

Mr. E. S. C. Brooks appeared for plaintiff, and said the premises were let for use as a farm, but whether there was anyone living there or not was not known.

The proprietor of the rented premises appeared in Court, and in answer to his Lordship said the premises were used as an eating house. He claimed that he paid the house to the rent collector on April 14, and said that the man agreed to allow him to stay provided he paid an increase of $8 monthly in the rent.

The original rent of $30 per month, said defendant, was subsequently raised to $40, and was now $48 per month.

Mr. Brooks remarked that he had no knowledge of the alleged arrangement, and said he did not think there could have been one, otherwise the writ would not have been taken out, as it was on May 28.

Defendant declared that there was such an arrangement, or he would not have been permitted to stay on. His Lordship remarked that as defendant persisted in the attitude, he would give him a chance to prove it, and adjourned the action until June 17, at 11.30 a.m.

Another action for possession brought by Woo Chan Yuet-ping against the Punjab Store, claiming possession of No. 122 Prince Edward Road, ground floor, and mesne profits, was stated to have been settled.

It had been adjourned from last week. Mr. S. Ng Quinn appeared for plaintiff, while defendant was represented by Mr. M. A. da Silva.

Lanling where 10,000 of General Dehuang's troops are surrounded, Japanese have commenced to cross the Yellow River near Kwangtung. Japanese artillery on the north bank is heavily shelling the Chinese on the south bank in order to cover the crossing at Chiniukou.—Reuters.

Heavy Chinese Losses

Tokyo, June 3. Chinese attempts to envelop the Japanese near Lanling have been frustrated, with the result that the Chinese forces have been in full retreat westward since early Thursday morning, according to information from the front. It is added that 15 divisions of Chinese troops, about 200,000 strong, attempted to encircle the Japanese near Lanling from three directions, namely, Knocheng, in the north, Kihai and Chien in the south, and Kailang in the west. These counterattacks have been repulsed, the report states, and Chinese casualties are very heavy.

Japanese air reconnaissance reports large Chinese forces in retreat westwards from the area south of the Yellow River, Kailang, and the metres south-east of Lanling, which is south of Kailang, while several trains loaded with field guns were seen moving westwards from Kailang.

The Chinese defeat is attributed to the swift westward push of the strong body of Japanese, threatening as it does the early capture of Chienliu. Chinese forces south of the Lung-hai Railway are fleeing westwards, but those north of the Lung-hai Railway especially at Sanyi, nine kilometres north-west of Lanling, reinforced by fresh troops, are still sticking to their positions.

Meanwhile Japanese military units have vigorously attacked the Chinese columns retreating toward Kailang from Hailungtsai and Chienliu.—Domei.

Japanese Losses High

Hankow, June 3. The Japanese Military Headquarters announced yesterday that the Japanese casualties in south Shantung and the Huachow area from the end of February to the end of May were 6,130 killed and 8,560 wounded, according to a message from Tokyo.—Central News.

costs, while sugar will be dispersed to inland centres. It was impossible to have a storage policy that would make the country independent of outside supplies for anything but the most limited period. Such a gigantic task would involve astronomical sums of money which could be better spent on the Services, to ensure that sea approaches were kept open.

The Bill has passed its second reading without division.

NO NEAR EMERGENCY

Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, emphasised that introduction of the Bill did not indicate that was any near approach to an emergency, and he hoped that events would justify the Government in thinking that an emergency was not so probable as some people might have thought in the past.

Sir Thomas said that the Government was proceeding on the basis that Britain did not want stocks to withstand a siege, but to carry the country over a period of trade disturbance, interruption to shipping, and the possible destruction of stocks and ports. He thought the Government had made adequate purchases for the present situation, and emphasised that the storage policy did not exclude the possibility of developing British agriculture.

Sir Thomas said the question of canning food in Britain was receiving careful consideration.—Reuters Special.

can co-operate they will be an invaluable stimulus to the men. Organisation is needed in the women's work to see that there is no duplication.

"The women should be the heaven to help the men."

"In certain provinces women are working on the land that has been allowed to lie fallow. They are doing the actual ploughing while the men are at the front."

"Women train others to help the army, dressing soldiers' wounds, writing letters for them and generally helping."

"Other provinces are doing education work in the cities which have been evacuated by bombs."

WOMEN NOT FIGHTING

"There are women at the front but the fighting is still in the hands of the men. As long as there are plenty of men the women will do other work but if the men are gone then the women will have to take up guns too."

"Another part of the women's work is to take care of refugees. A family may start evacuating a city with five children and end up with only one."

The children are often too weak to keep up and all along the road you can hear children crying. "Mother, Father, please don't leave me behind." It is our job to try and take care of these lost children."

Pick-Pocket

Attempting to extract a coat worn by Mr. W. G. Griffin, of the Hongkong Telephone Company, led to the undoing of a pickpocket who, in Court this morning, admitted to five previous pickpocketing convictions.

Two brothers were brought before Mr. R. Edwards, the second, Lam Wah, aged 23, being discharged for lack of evidence. Lam So, 20, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour.

Mr. Griffin was walking down Des Voeux Road when Lam So bumped into him. Under cover of a rustling Chinese newspaper he attempted to remove the pen from the breast pocket of Mr. Griffin's jacket.

"I caught the first defendant by the arm. He struggled to get free and the second man came up and attempted to release his companion," Mr. Griffin said. The man was held until police arrived and arrested him.

When he comes out of prison in six months' time, Lam So will receive $2 to "start life afresh." The Magistrate ordered that this amount be given to the man at the expiration of his sentence.

INSURGENT BOMBINGS CONTINUE

But Land Forces Held Up

Hendaye, June 3. While Loyalist reinforcements stalled General Franco's drive to the sea, fleets of insurgent bombers blasted towns and villages along the Teruel-Sagunto highway.

Among the victimised centres was the ancient Roman town of Segorbe, which has been partially destroyed, the ancient walls erected by the Romans to keep out Moorish invaders being completely demolished by modern high explosives. Ten people were killed and 25 injured in the town.

Twenty bombers attacked Valdeuzo, east of Segorbe, killing six and wounding 15.

The insurgents' advance from Burgos that they brought down six Loyalist pursuit planes during the course of the day.—United Press.

VALENCIA ATTACK THREATENS

Saragossa, June 3. A resumption of the insurgent advance on the Eastern Front was marked by heavy attacks on Loyalist positions, the capture of which may herald a whirlwind advance on Valencia.

Despite 15,000 reinforcements, it is understood that the Loyalists are being gradually beaten back, although bad weather renders the use of aircraft difficult.—Reuter.

Japanese To Restore All U.S. Property

Won't Hinder Return To Occupied Areas

Washington, June 3. The Department of State announced today that Japan had agreed to meet almost all of the demands for the restoration of American property in China to its rightful owners.

Japan, further, will not hinder the return of Americans to their properties.

The Shanghai University properties have been returned to the Southern Baptist Missionary Society, and the Japanese military authorities have agreed to allow the return of American missionaries to Nanking, which has been closed to all foreigners since its capture in December. Ten passes are being issued to the missionaries who had to evacuate the city.

The Japanese Foreign Office has informed the American Ambassador in Tokyo that Japan is sending an inter-Departmental Committee to visit the areas under Japanese control in Central China, in order to investigate the situation with regard to occupied American property and to formulate means for a satisfactory adjustment of the situation.—Reuter.

from her bag produced the most amazing revelations about husbands disinheriting wives; perhaps that is why she is a spinster.

There has been one woman Cabinet Minister in England—bespectacled Miss Margaret Bondfield, who was Minister of Labour during the Socialist regime of 1929 to 1931—but she was reputed to be a little over-generous with the country's money.

Perhaps one day we shall have a woman Prime Minister, but certainly that day is not yet in sight.

STIMULATE DEMAND FOR TIN

International Quota Action Taken

Paris, June 3. According to a communiqué issued after today's meeting, the International Tin Committee has fixed the quota for the third quarter of 1938 at 45 per cent, which includes provision for buffer stocks.

Standard tonnages have been increased in the cases of Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies only, by the addition of 7½ per cent. to their previous quotas.

From the total of 45 per cent., such a percentage as the International Tin Committee will determine later will be allocated towards the formation of buffer stocks, to which the International Tin Committee agreed in principle on the lines of the buffer stock skeleton scheme already submitted to signatory Governments.

A sub-committee, which will elaborate the draft as rapidly as possible, has been formed. It will take into account the observations made by certain signatories to the scheme.

It is anticipated that the completed scheme, in a form suitable for signature by the delegates, will be placed before a special meeting of the International Tin Committee which will be held in London prior to July 1.

It is hoped that the meeting will fix the percentage of tonnages within the total quota of 45 per cent. which will be assigned towards the formation of the buffer stock.—Reuter.

BULLISH REACTION

The action of the International Tin Committee was more bullish than was generally expected, resulting in a heavy demand on the spot market from dealers and consumers, with sellers reluctant to participate.

The turnover late in the afternoon was estimated to exceed 350 tons. Trade circles are of the opinion that possibly as much as 15 per cent. may be allocated to the buffer stock.—Reuter.

HUMIDITY DOWN; FAIR FORECAST

Hongkong's temperature was still high this morning, 86 degrees being registered. Humidity, however, was down to 77 per cent. and the Colony felt cooler.

Yesterday's maximum temperature reached only 80, three degrees below that of the previous day, while the minimum last night was 78.

The Royal Observatory weather report issued this morning stated that the anti-cyclone remains stationary over China. Pressure is probably highest to the north of the Yangtze mouth, and is relatively low over Indo-China.

Local forecast is—East and south-east winds, moderate; fair generally.

TWENTY DOLLAR
PASSPORTS

A Chinese from a war-stricken town of the coast or interior, where Japanese bombers or sea raiders have very considerably reduced the expectation of life and made all business a precarious sort of game, must have twenty dollars in his pocket or he will not be received here. Officially he is not a refugee. This is the effect of instructions issued by the Hongkong authorities to the police and disclosed to the Telegraph on Tuesday. The police are watching ships and trains and preventing Chinese without this unusual form of passport entering the Colony. Those who lack it are simply to be shipped back to the places whence they came—unless, of course, some friend or relative comes forward and takes the responsibility of providing for them. Just why the Government fixed upon $20 has not been disclosed. Presumably it is felt that that sum would provide food and lodging of a sort for a month and by that time the emergency in China might be over. Vain hope. The Government, with all respect, should not be planning a month ahead, but for a year at least in this connection. There are a good many thousands of Chinese with $20 and there is simply no room for them here under present conditions. If they continue coming in their thousands all the anti-eviction legislation and rent control schemes that can be conceived will not make Hongkong any more comfortable residentially. There are three ways at least of tackling this problem. The first, as the Telegraph has frequently suggested, is to establish refugee centres in the New Territories, possibly with the assistance of organised charities; the second is to close the frontier altogether; the third might well be in the direction of an international appeal to Japan to respect certain refugee areas in and about all Chinese cities, which would be marked suitably so that aircraft would not attack them mistakenly. These could be supervised with foreign assistance and probably would receive medical and financial aid from abroad. If, as the Japanese appear to intend, Canton is to continue to be a target for bombing fleets, the population must make up its mind either to risk death and remain, or find some suitable and secure sanctuary near at hand. At present Hong-

asks
MICHAEL KILLANIN

UNLIKE the little nigger boys, the number of women M.P.s increases, and now there are 12. After the general election nine women were returned to Parliament, but with the victory of the Socialist, Dr. Summerson, who took her seat in the House recently, women have won three by-elections since 1935.

It was in October 1918 that Mr. Herbert Samuel (now Lord Samuel) moved the resolution in the House that it was desirable to make it legal for women to be members of Parliament, and that resolution was passed by 274 votes to 25.

I have spent hours trying to discover what exactly our women M.P.s had done. I found that they had talked—and talked in many cases with authority—on every conceivable subject. But, honestly, I could not trace one major Act that had been passed of which the women can rightly call themselves the prime movers.

Lady Astor, who was the first woman M.P. to take her seat in the House, and has represented the Sutton Division of Plymouth since 1919, is still the foremost woman member. [Actually a Sinn Féin woman, Countess Markievicz, had been previously elected, but did not go to the House.]

Lady Astor has become a hostess for the Conservative Party, entertaining at her London house in St. James's and her riverside home at Cliveden. She is always neatly dressed in a black tailor-made suit with a white collar, which shows up against the drab clothes worn by the men of the House.

She is the most talkative member, keeping up a continual conversation with Opposition members, such as Communist William Gallacher and Independent Labour Maxton. Her usual comment is, "Go to Russia." Perhaps after the events of last week she will be more careful about telling members to go to foreign countries.

Flies Her Own Plane

THERE sits nearest to Lady Astor Mrs. C. M. Tate, who now represents the Frome division of Somerset—formerly having been M.P. for Willesden West.

She was born in St. Helena but is no political exile, being now in the thick of the fray. She flies her own aeroplane, is keen on gardening, and seems to talk chiefly on chickens, shops, and servants.

Another woman who attracts attention is Miss Thelma Cazalet, who has represented East Islington since 1931. She previously had considerable L.C.C. experience and is now an alderman of the County of London.

She combines music with sport, being a proficient tennis

player, even having partnered her schoolgirl friend Miss Megan Lloyd George—Opposition Liberal M.P. for Anglesey—in tournaments.

When she has papers to read she puts on and takes off her spectacles in the most lawyer-like way. If it assists—I do not think it does—a parliamentary career she is a water diviner. So is Geoffrey Shakespear, M.P. for Norwich, but then he is at the Admiralty.

Miss Cazalet is the only woman who has any official position in this Government.

When She Talks Of War
THE Duchess of Atholl, a Unionist member for Kinross and West Perth, and now a back bench, was at one time Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education, and sat on the front bench.

She is no longer in the Government, but is one of its severest critics, being very much an aristocratic rebel. She is tall, thin, dark, with a lean face. Her pets are at the moment Basque children, but it is terrifying when this quiet woman talks of war, for she will recount the most lurid details in the calmest way for a longer time than almost any other speaker.

The other women National Conservatives are Viscountess Davidson (Hemel Hempstead), Miss Florence Horsbrugh (Dundee), and Miss Irene Ward (Walsend-on-Tyne).

Lady Davidson gained her seat in a by-election last year when her husband was raised to peerage. The mother of four children, she is always well dressed, combining her political life with fox-hunting and entertaining.

Miss Florence Horsbrugh is the senior member for Dundee. In 1936 she created a precedent by being the first woman to move the reply to the Address from the Throne, on the opening of Parliament.

She has attacked Red Biddy, the Scottish methylated spirits concoction which was a menace to the impoverished, and the B.B.C. for attacking the Prime Minister.

She is interested in jute, for Dundee is the home of jute, jam, and journalists. I cannot trace her having been interested in the latter two J.s. She has by far the best voice of the women members.

Miss Irene Ward knows more about coal than any woman, and perhaps more than most M.P.s. Some believe that she is the best type of Conservative woman member, and she does not waste an opportunity to raise the question of coal and miners.

So much for the Conservatives. Now we come to Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of ex-Premier David and brother of Major Gwilym, who together form a kind of independent Liberal Party. Recently, when a bard at an Eisteddfod at Caernarvon, she was called "Megan of the Golden Voice." She uses her voice frequently and often effectively.

Hunger-Marching
THE two Socialist women members are Miss Ellen Wilkinson and Mrs. Agnes Hardie. It will be with them that Dr. Summerson will sit and vote.

Miss Ellen Wilkinson, although the smallest M.P., makes herself heard. She has by far the most biting tongue of any member, and makes slashing accusations against the Government.

She claims to have spoken since she was five, and now, "five feet nothing," she thinks nothing of hunger-marching with unemployed from Jarrow her constituency, to London. There are few things she likes more than careering off to fraternise with down-trodden proletariats on the Continent.

Mrs. Agnes Hardie (Springburn, Glasgow), widow of George Hardie, M.P., and sister-in-law of Keir Hardie, is the opposite. She speaks little and (Continued on Page 5.)

Stop those Crazy Comedies and Give Us Films We Can Believe In

DEAR Mrs. Brown,—
There will be no film famine this year, next year, any year or ever. I think you can be quite sure about that.

Of course, there has been a lot of talk about a serious shortage of films, but then there always is.

Producers like to talk about it, since that sends up the prices they get for their pictures. Cinema-owners like to talk about it, since that sends producers scurrying to make more pictures, and that sends the prices of pictures down.

So round and round they go, chasing each other, trying to scare each other, and getting nowhere.

"But you are quite right in believing that the film world is in a dither. It is not exactly in a panic, but, as they say in Hollywood, it has the jitters."

And so it should. In the past few years it has indeed asked for it.

Star-Making

YOU make a grand point when you say film stars are not as likeable as they used to be. That is profoundly true.

And why? Simply because so many splendid stars have been torn away from their personalities by the craze for crazy comedy.

I wish you could have been with me the other day when Samuel Goldwyn was talking about star-making.

Nobody in the world knows more about star-making than Samuel Goldwyn, and this is what he said to me:

"Actors and actresses—I am not interested in finding them. Anybody can be trained to act. I took for personalities."

"Personalities" is something that is given to you by fate. If you do not have it, there is nothing you can do about it."

Coming from Samuel Goldwyn, that is very interesting.

Living Their Parts

AMONG the stars you like best you name:

Myrna Loy, Shirley Temple, Gracie Fields, William Powell, George Formby, Errol Flynn.

Have you realised that all these players and others, like Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Sonja Henie, and Deanna Durbin, are always themselves?

They are not so much acting as living their parts, and the actor who does it best is Gary Cooper. You want him to be himself or, as you say, you insist on his being in character.

The job of a film is to present the romance of reality. Our film-makers should now remember this. They have been ga-ga long enough.

MARGRAVE

What films at the moment are so popular that cinemas like the Stoll Picture Theatre are breaking away from their one-week-only policy to run them for two and three weeks?

Just "100 Men and a Girl," with Deanna Durbin, and "The Prisoner of Zenda," with Ronald Colman.

Back To Reality

YOU like Errol Flynn because you associate him with "Captain Blood" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade." You will welcome him in "The Adventures of Robin Hood."

And the film most in demand for reissue to-day is Norma Shearer's "Smilin' Through."

You will recall some years ago the films of shady morals and shallow wit we called sophisticated comedies. Norma Shearer had made several of these films before she came to London.

I told her then that she was throwing away all the good will she had ever earned, and I talked her into making "Smilin' Through." Her making that film was entirely my idea, and it was a good idea even if I say it as shouldn't.

To-day there are a lot of people in Hollywood I would like to talk to—all those excellent players who are appearing in crazy comedies and making themselves ridiculous. They are destroying their personalities all because they are unable to distinguish between what is real and what is rubbish.

A film industry which publishes the wonder of throwing tomatoes at an opera singer is really throwing tomatoes at itself.

Mrs. Brown, I am sure you would begin to like nearly all film stars again if films would only return to human drama.

There is really no reason for delay in view of the tremendous success of pictures such as "Hurricane," "In Old Chicago," and "A Yank at Oxford."

There will be still less reason when we see films like "Test Pilot," with Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, and Spencer Tracy, or "Marie Antoinette," with Norma Shearer—tales of real men and real women—of romance and reality.

The job of a film is to present the romance of reality. Our film-makers should now remember this. They have been ga-ga long enough.

Britain Works for Armistice in Spain

SIMULTANEOUSLY HOPES TO SETTLE SUDETEN PROBLEM

Progress Made in Scheme To End Civil War; But Sudeten Situation Vague

London, June 3.

Great Britain has won the first important move in efforts to arrange an armistice in the Spanish civil war.

Russia has withdrawn her objections to the British plan for the withdrawal of volunteers and has agreed to accept the method of counting volunteers on both sides, plus a division of these foreign forces into four main categories, as well as the restoration of land and sea control on the Spanish frontier.

It is disclosed that Great Britain intends to work actively to arrange the armistice. In addition to seeking a pacific settlement of the Czech-Sudeten German problem, Britain is leaving nothing undone in her campaign for peace in Spain. Eventual direct and friendly negotiations is her aim.

Germany is reported to be dissatisfied with the work of the Non-Intervention Committee. Mr. Neville Chamberlain is thus planning to extend the scope of the committee's work and to attempt to effect an agreement which will actually terminate the civil war.

To this end it is probable that the British Prime Minister will seek the collaboration of France and Italy. And he will sound out the Insurgents' and Loyalists' opinions in the matter of an attempted round-table conference of belligerents, at which a settlement will be attempted.—United Press.

Hitler In Daily Conference

Berlin, June 3.

It is learned that Herr Adolf Hitler is in daily conference with naval and military leaders, including Field Marshal Herman Goering, General von Brauchitsch and General Wilhelm Keitel, and Rear-Admiral Erich Raeder. Well informed quarters believe the conferences concern Spain.

Reports are circulating in military quarters that "a decision of importance" will soon be made.

Meanwhile, there is evidence of increased tension in the press attacks on Czechoslovakia, despite the reports in other capitals that this tension has eased.

Reports Of Abuse Of Sudeten Germans

The afternoon papers yesterday gave prominence to a German News Bureau report that four Czech soldiers drove a German citizen and his wife out of bed at the point of the bayonet in the middle of the night, and forced them to give up a swastika flag which flew legally beside the Czech flag. The swastika is not banned in the Sudeten region.

It is added that the soldiers insulted Herr Hitler. Authorities close to the foreign office insist Germany's only desire is that the minorities problem should be settled soon and peacefully. However, Czech circles say the attitude of the press is calculated to convince Sudeten Germans that union with Germany may be expected eventually.—United Press.

Cost Of Removal

Paris, June 3.

It is announced that the French delegate will propose at Friday's meeting of the sub-Committee of the Non-Intervention Committee a plan under which Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy will finance the estimated £600,000 cost of removing volunteers from Spain. Since the Soviet Government has refused to give financial aid towards the cost of removing volunteers, France is proposing that the remaining four Great Powers should bear the cost.—United Press.

Cut Across Traffic Police Motor-Cycle

Several Europeans On Traffic Charges

For cutting in on a traffic policeman while turning into Kimberley Road from Nathan Road on May 7, P. T. Chambers, 170 Boundary Street, was fined $25 when he pleaded guilty through a representative before Mr. Q. A. A. Macdonald at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning to a summons for driving a car in a dangerous manner. Traffic Sergeant A. Bethell said that he was driving a motor cycle combination towards the Star Ferry when Chambers, coming in the opposite direction, cut in front into Kimberley Road. Only through braking hard and swerving was a collision avoided.

SWIMMING CHAMPION FINED

Summoned for carrying a passenger on his motor cycle without a pillion seat Norman Lee, the local swimming champion, was fined $5. Driving without headlights in Nathan Road at midnight on May 2-3, cost S. E. Edgar, of Holland, House $5.

DID NOT REPORT ACCIDENT

P. T. Chambers, of the Botanical and Forestry Department, was summoned before Mr. H. R. Butters at the Central Magistracy this morning, and charged with failing to report an accident on May 12. He was also charged with driving a car without due care and caution. Mr. D. B. Evans, appearing on behalf of defendant, pleaded guilty to the first charge and not guilty to the second.

The reason why the accident was not reported, said Mr. Evans, was because a traffic constable on point duty was on the scene after the accident, and after speaking to the injured man, walked away. As his injuries were so slight, and the constable had attached no importance to it, the defendant had thought it unnecessary to make a report.

Traffic Sergeant G. Youe said that the man was knocked down and injured by the defendant near the Garden Hotel on May 13 at about 6.45 p.m. His injuries were not slight, as when he saw the man only last Tuesday, there were still many painful abrasions on his body. The man had been asked to be present in court, but apparently had not been able to attend.

A fine of $10 was inflicted on the first charge, and the second charge against the defendant was dismissed.

LADY PAYS $10

Charged with causing an obstruction with her car by parking it in Constance Road near the Sun Company on May 11, Mrs. P. de Hobeck was fined $10 when found guilty of the charge.

MANIACAL CHOPPER ATTACK

Three Chinese Women Sent To Hospital

Three Chinese women are in hospital in Kowloon as the result of a maniacal attack by an assailant armed with a chopper. The women were attacked at their home in Gresson Street. The alleged assailant, Leung Kwai, has been arrested.

Terrible wounds were inflicted by the man during his attack, in which he struck repeatedly at the heads of his victims. Stricks from the women quickly brought police on the scene and Leung Kwai was overpowered. No reason has been given for the attack.

The man will appear in Kowloon Court as soon as his victims have recovered sufficiently to give evidence.

JAMAICA GOVERNOR SUCCUMBS

Minor Operation Proves Fatal

Kingston, June 3.

Sir Edward Denham, Governor of the Island of Jamaica, who was relieved as Governor of British Guiana in 1934 by Hongkong's present Governor, Sir Geoffrey Northcote, passed away suddenly in Kingston to-day.

Sir Edward entered hospital yesterday for a minor operation, which was successfully carried out. He took a sudden turn for the worse last night, and died this morning.—Reuter.

Sir Edward Denham has been Governor of Jamaica since 1934, when he was transferred to that Colony after being relieved in British Guiana by Sir Geoffrey Northcote.

SERVICE IN CEYLON

He was born in 1876 and educated at Malvern School, Merion College, Oxford at the latter being an exhibitor and taking the B. A. degree in 1900.

In the same year he entered the Ceylon Civil Service and was appointed an assistant to the Government Agent in the Western Province. After holding various other posts progressively he became, in September, 1905, private secretary to Sir A.

Governor Served With Sir Edward

It is revealed that His Excellency the Governor served for four years under the late Sir Edward Denham in Kenya Colony.

News of the death of the Governor of Jamaica was conveyed to Government House early this morning by the Telegraph.

"His Excellency the Governor and Lady Northcote are deeply shocked to hear of the tragic and sudden death of Sir Edward, with whom they were well acquainted," a Government House official told the Telegraph.

Ashmore, who was temporarily in charge of the administration, and he was also made organising secretary to the Agricultural Board.

For a time he acted as a district judge and was then made private secretary to Sir Hugh Clifford when, in 1909, he had charge of the Government. In August 1910, he was appointed superintendent of the census which took place next year and afterwards wrote a book on the subject.

In the next nine years he was successively Principal Assistant to the Colonial Secretary, Government Agent for the Eastern Province, Director of Education, and (during the Great War) Director of Food Production for the Island.

Transferred in 1920 to Mauritius, he was Colonial Secretary there until 1923, and for three periods held charge of the Colonial Secretariat in Kenya, being later appointed Colonial Secretary for Kenya.

CONTROVERSY IN KENYA

The controversy in the latter colony caused by the demand of the Indian settlers for equal treatment with the whites had just been settled by a decision of the Imperial Government, which, while making concessions to the Indians and Arabs, upheld the white settlers' demand for privileges which would maintain their dominant position and so keep Kenya as a European colony. During the five years Sir Edward was acting Governor on several occasions and in 1927 was knighted (K.C.M.G.).

After two years as Governor of Gambia he was appointed early in 1930 Governor of British Guiana, and remained there until 1934, when he was appointed Governor of Jamaica. Labour troubles have been rife in the latter Colony since the beginning of this year, and only yesterday a cablegram from Sir Edward was read in the House of Commons by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, outlining the situation, which is much improved.

The late Governor is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter. Lady Denham was before her marriage, Miss Maude Bromhead Butt. Sir Edward was joint author, while serving in Ceylon, of "Rubber in the East".

He was a keen sportsman, and took an active part in field sports in Jamaica.

STIMULUS TO HOLIDAY PLAN

London, June 3.

A further stimulus to the growing movement for giving workers holidays with pay was foreshadowed in the House of Commons to-day by the Minister for Labour, Mr. Ernest Brown.

The Minister told the House that the Government would move to give the fullest and most practicable effect to the recommendations of the Committee of Labour, which workers should be granted holidays with pay, and legislation would be introduced empowering trade boards and agricultural committees to provide paid holidays, and also to enable the Ministry of Labour machinery to be used in the administration of a holiday scheme.—Reuter.

O'Callaghan
Becomes A Wrestler
Seeking Fame In United States

The only "one-man team" in the world, Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, the hammer thrower of Ireland, sails for the United States this week to become a professional wrestler. He may also do some boxing.

Dr. Pat won world fame by being entered for the Olympic Games as Ireland's "team" in 1928. He was booked for the wrestling and boxing events, but elected to challenge only for the hammer-throwing title.

He won it, too, with a record throw, and repeated his success in 1932. I am not sure of his age, but as he was an Olympic champion 10 years ago, he cannot be so young to be starting business as a wrestler and boxer, says Geoffrey Simpson.

Nevertheless, as an Irish-born wrestler and with his Olympic background, he is sure to be popular in America. If he makes good, O'Callaghan aims to return to England towards the end of the year and meet Earl McCready, the British Empire champion, who is trying to re-establish straight catch-as-catch-can.

McCready is still busy campaigning against "all-in" wrestling, which he describes as one large racket, but it seems to me that the "all-in" professors are firmly entrenched, and McCready will need helpers in order to shift them.

12-YEAR SERVICE
IN BRITISH ARMY
NOW OPTIONAL

Anybody who wants to join the British army for 12 years without a break, can now do so as a result of a new Army Order just released. The order provides that as from May 1, men joining the army at home may sign on with the Colours for 12 years. The same order becomes effective for recruits abroad on August 1 of this year.

Hitherto the usual rule has been for a man to sign on for seven years with the colours and then to complete the rest of his 12 years in reserve. In the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers, however, it is customary to sign on for six years and to serve the remaining six on reserve.

Under the new order, a 12 years stretch with the Colours will be optional for a man joining any department of the army.

A YANK AT OXFORD

Copyright 1938 by Loew's Inc.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Lee Sheridan's over-confident ways grate on his British classmates at Oxford, who put him as a good athlete, but an American braggart. Molly Beaumont, sister of a member of the class, is the only person to disagree and to like Lee for himself. When Lee is kept out of a relay race in which he has been asked to participate, he deliberately trips Paul Beaumont on the track and runs the last quarter-mile to victory. Paul's measures are planned by the student body, in a group they perform the traditional rite of taking Lee from his dormitory and removing his trousers.

Chapter Eight

It took very little time for the students, working in harmonious efficiency, to accost the rascal, the American boy's trousers.

Lee stood alone and furious as, their mission completed, the undergraduates broke up into little singing groups; he glared after them, frozen to the spot with shame and humiliation. In a moment, however, the faithful Beaton was before him. With a little bow, the old man handed him a pair of trousers, neatly folded.

"Will that be all, sir?"

"Not on your life," Lee said angrily. "For a few guys like him in mind, this day is just beginning."

"Don't take it to heart, sir," Beaton begged. "There's no disgrace to being disgraced. Why, sir, I recall a Prime Minister in this very Quad. And in those days gentlemen were no undergarments."

Lee wasn't amused. "They might do that to a Prime Minister, but

"Hey! Beaumont!" he called out grimly, following Paul toward the rear wall. Abruptly he stopped short as he saw Miss Craddock sitting on a bench in the corner. She smiled meaningfully in return. "So you're wearing your trousers!" she chided. "How modest!" "I'd like to see you a minute, Beaumont," went on Lee, disregarding her.

"Nothing would give me greater pleasure," Paul replied smilingly. He turned to Elias. "Evidently our Yank is looking for further punishment."

"Oh, yeah? Let's see what you can do without your gang behind you," Lee said.

With this, he swung at Paul. They exchanged fast, fierce blows for a few seconds. Suddenly the door burst open. Wavertree rushed in. He waved his hands frantically as he tried to stop the battle.

"Buller!" he yelled. "Buller, I tell you!"

Paul dropped his fists. "We'll finish this later," he muttered.

As Lee and Paul made for the alley, a burly Buller charged into the room. Wavertree bravely threw himself against him to impede his progress and permit the others to escape.

"I am definitely a member of this university, and am also roaring drunk," he insisted, but the Buller pushed him off.

Elias was just-stricken as the Buller, followed by Wavertree, rushed out into the alley. Lee had hidden behind the door and now, as the Buller started to pass him, he shot out. The Buller dropped, neither Elias nor Wavertree had seen Lee strike the blow.

Paul, horrified, stooped over the fallen Buller.

"Are you hurt, old chap?" He asked solicitously, lifting him to a sitting position.

The Buller stared at him for a brief instant. Then, mechanically, he said:

"Good evening, sir. Are you a member of this university?"

The next morning, Paul stood before the Dean, Simmons, the Buller who had been struck, was also present.

Lee did not understand this. Mr. Beaumont, the Dean said. "You permit in saying you did not strike Simmons, sir."

"And you will not tell me who did?"

"Sorry, sir," Paul said, shaking his head.

The Dean turned to Simmons. "You are certain it was Mr. Beaumont who struck you?" he asked.

"Thank you. That will be all," Simmons left the room. The Dean turned back to Paul. "I am much upset, Mr. Beaumont. Striking a Buller is serious enough, but denying it is unforgivable."

"I assure you I didn't hit him, sir," Paul said.

"The facts indicate that you did things he came to my ears, concerning a young man. I understand she was with you last night."

"I am a family in distinction, your record excellent. We have all felt that you might have had a brilliant career in the Foreign Office."

Paul looked at him with a frightened expression.

"I hesitate to send you down and blast that error," the Dean continued, pacing the room. Paul waited tensely for the verdict. The Dean turned back to him.

"I will fine you twenty pounds, but —" his voice grew even sterner — "one more violation of rules by you, Mr. Beaumont, and you will be sent down at once. Do you understand?"

"Quite, sir."

"Good morning, Mr. Beaumont," the Dean said in cold dismissal.

In Paul's room his friends had gathered to await the result of his visit to the Dean. Molly, alarmed and fearing the worst, came to the doorway and looked questionably around the room.

She turned as Paul entered. "Is it all right?" she asked, crossing to him.

In a few words, Paul told them what the Dean had ordered.

"That's cheap enough for hitting a Buller," Preston said. "Paul whirled on him. 'Confound it! I didn't hit him! It was Sheridan!'" he exclaimed angrily.

Everyone stared at him in astonishment.

"But, Paul!" Molly said. "Wavertree says he saw you do it."

"What gave you that idea?" Paul said angrily.

Wavertree, honestly sure no one but Paul could have done it — since Lee had disappeared altogether — suddenly stood up. The entire room grew cold to Paul. Everyone felt he was lying.

One by one the students left. At last only Molly remained.

"Paul, this isn't like you," she said sadly.

"Go, you're taking sides with them!" he said, turning on her angrily. Then, bitterly, he stalked out of the room.

Chapter Nine

Molly, running after her brother, was angry and puzzled. "Why are you trying to shield that Craddock person?" she demanded.

"That has nothing to do with it! I told you, and I'll continue to tell you, your friend Sheridan hit that Buller."

Molly stepped back. "You've been beaten to Lee from the first," said Molly, stopping back, "but this is really too much."

"Far too much," Paul said bitterly, "to have your own sister think you a liar."

Molly stared helplessly. "But, Paul, you were seen. I realize Lee played a rotten trick on you at the race yesterday, but he's had his punishment."

"It hasn't even started," returned Paul, shaking his head. "And if you have any loyalty at all, you'll stop being seen with him."

Molly's voice was icy as she replied. "You reminded me once that your private life is your own."

"All right," Paul snapped. "Make yourself cheap by running around with him. I can't stop you."

"No, you can't! I cut him yesterday because of you... but now I wish I hadn't."

"Now I know where we stand!" Paul grated.

Molly hesitated for a moment; then, sadly, she walked out. Paul went to the window, his expression bitter. As he stood there, the bells began to chime. Suddenly there was a knock at the door.

It was Lee, one of his eyes dark and a little swollen, but still a cocky Lee. "Remember me?" he asked in bantering challenge.

"Look here, Sheridan," Paul said angrily. "Are you going through with this?"

"Why not?" Lee asked calmly. "I've always known you were a braggart. Now I know you're a coward and a liar as well," Paul responded furiously.

"Coming from you, I hit that Buller, because you're going to take the rap for it. I'm only sorry they're not going to kick you out."

Paul started to take off his coat. "There's only one way to treat your neck," he said.

"Now we're getting some place," grinned Lee, following the other boy's example. "I've been looking forward to this."

As they faced each other, the bells of Oxford were heard in a glorious burst. Paul paused. He dropped his hands.

"What are you waiting for?" Lee demanded.

"You wouldn't understand this," Paul said bitingly, "but a degree from Oxford means more to me than the extreme pleasure of winning your neck."

Lee turned and took his coat under his arm. "Got out!" he ordered.

"I had a hunch that one of those good old British principles would come to your rescue," Lee said maliciously. As Paul, by sheer will, stood firm, Lee stepped into the hallway, almost bumping into Wavertree, Ramsey and Sheridan. They looked at him inquisitively.

"Hello, Yank," Preston said. "What were you doing in there?"

"I was just been in to see poor old Beaumont... to tender my condolences," Lee said with mock sympathy. The three stared at him, mistaking his tone for one of real concern. And with that moment they began to look upon Lee in a different light — as one of respect.

The summer passed. Lee, contrite as he realized the boys had bestowed on him an undeserved virtue, still could not bring himself to the action to clear Paul. In the spring he was again his old self-assured self, but with a difference: no longer was his confidence one of sheer defiance. And now his classmates accepted his attitude with great good nature.

Paul, alone, was unable to forget. Lee and Paul were together often — they were members of the Cardinal crew — but away from the shell or the locker room the two boys never spoke. Lee tried to be friendly, but Paul would have none of it.

But he couldn't go on. He hesitated. "Nothing," he finally murmured.

At that moment, in far-off Lake-dale, Dan Sheridan was preparing for a trip to Oxford. Every letter Lee wrote spoke of Molly, and of Lee's happiness at school. The last one had told of the forthcoming race between Oxford and Cambridge — the classic of all row events. Dan determined to see Lee stroke Oxford to victory.

There was no doubt in Dan's mind but that Cardinal, guided by Lee, would go to the head of the river in the bump races that day. Without college would represent the university in the annual classic between Oxford and Cambridge. It took the senior Sheridan a long time to grasp the fundamentals of "bump" racing, but Dean Williams, who had spent three years at Oxford, carefully explained it all to him.

In a "bump race" the shells all started off in single file, because the river at the point at Oxford is too narrow for them to row abreast. The object of the race, was for each boat to bump the one ahead of it, without being caught by the boat behind. Should a shell move up to the front without being bumped, it is victorious — literally, at the head of the river.

On the day of the race, the river bank was lined with gay spectators. The Cardinal shell, stretched down the river, College barges, flying bunting and pennants and overflowing with gay spectators, had points of vantage.

Molly cheered wildly as the Cardinal shell stroked Lee, slowly moved up the river. As it bumped the shell representing Balliol College, the Balliol coxswain lifted his hat in token of surrender. The Cardinal shell raced on. A moment more, and another shell was overtaken, and the race was just one left, that of Christchurch.

"Bump them, Cardinal!" Molly yelled. "Row, Lee!"

In the Cardinal shell, the coxswain was worried as Lee continued to raise the boat.

"They can't keep up this stroke!" he called warningly.

"They have to!" Lee panted. Desperately, the crew hung on. Slowly the prow of the Cardinal cleared the water in the wake of Christchurch. The Cardinal crew bent to their task grimly.

There was a look of consternation on the face of the Christchurch coxswain as Cardinal closed in. Then it was all over. Cardinal, spending on, crashed into the Christchurch boat. For a moment, Christchurch lurched. Then it turned over, its prow crew thrown into the waters of the Isis.

Thunderous cheers rolled across from Cardinal supporters. Molly was delicious with joy. Cardinal had gained the head of the river and the honor of representing Oxford against Cambridge.

ITALIAN BOMBERS FOR R.A.F. UNLIKELY

London, June 3.
Persistent reports that Italian aircraft manufacturers were offering through British commercial channels to supply warplanes to the Royal Air Force so far have not received countenance in official quarters, either in Rome or London.

It is alleged that offers mainly concern Caproni twin-engined bombers. Commendatore Caproni, who frequently visits London, is coming again next week.

Interviewed by Reuters Rome Correspondent, the famous Italian aircraft designer and manufacturer said he knew nothing of the reports. "If we can sell aeroplane engines to Great Britain, we will certainly do so," he added.

Strategic and political implications of the scheme, however, are not overlooked, and any transaction will require careful review by Signor Mussolini and the British Air Ministry.—Reuters.

The situation at Lanfeng is becoming critical for the Chinese, who recently recaptured the city.
